DEEP

O Self, fare onward to the august deep,
Rest not within the shadows of the shore;
Small pools are shallow, and no beauty store
While distant depths a greater wisdom keep
To stir the spirit from its earthly sleep.
The unplumbed ocean has a splendor more,
Great melody is in the mid-sea's roar,
Fare onward, Self, unto the august deep.

O Self, stay not within a placid sea
But pass to greater depths of thought and pain
Where men have still the fiery crown of truth,
The wisdom which is of eternity
Beyond the stars, an infinite refrain—
The love that lit the faithful heart of Ruth . . .

ever be

"Scientific"?

By

DANE RUDHYAR

There has been of late an increasing number of statements by leading astrologers, including men with a scientific career, to the effect that astrology ought to be made "scientific." The terms "laboratory tests," "experimental," have been used in connection with new astrological "research." The old astrology has been condemned as "unscientific," and "proofs" have been given of new systems involving complicated mathematical and astronomical formulations.

It seems necessary, for the sake of astrology itself and of the public at large, that these claims be investigated, not in terms of superficial results, but as to the validity of the fundamentals involved. In this brief article it is not our purpose to pursue such a fundamental investigation, but merely to ask questions and to suggest certain tests. We hope that if those are sufficiently broadcast something might be started which would clarify the field of astrology and help to define, by limiting it, its scope and to establish the true character of the astrological method.

First of all, it would be well to differentiate clearly the various branches of astrology. This alone would put an end to much of the confusion existing at present in the minds of interested people. To that end, we would tentatively suggest that the following basic classification be accepted as a general framework:

1. Mundane or Natural Astrology

This is undoubtedly the oldest form of astrology. Astrology began, it seems evident, in agricultural civilizations like the Chaldean and the Chinese, as a system of research enabling men to determine a yearly calendar, regulating all agricultural activities. As such, astrology was a matter of life and death for the people. It was so vital as to be considered "sacred." Priests-Initiates dealt with it under the seal of authority of the King. Its function was to determine the proper time for sowing and harvesting, for breeding the cattle, for performing all the vital acts insuring the life of the community.

When problems of preservation of the race-type arose, as in ancient India when the Aryan invaders were in danger of being physiologically absorbed by the older inhabitants of India, the question of human breeding became even more important than cattle-breeding. This was the origin of the caste-system . . . and apparently of erecting the birth-chart of individual persons in order to make sure that their mating would produce vital offspring. Thus originated "natal astrology" at first dealing with purely physiological problems.

Just as the old astrological calendar and the zodiac have developed into the science of astronomy, so it may be assumed that other and more complex forms of natural or mundane astrology may eventually become part of an extended science including astronomy, meteorology, seismology and certain aspects of the sciences dealing with the propagation and development of physiological types (vegetable, animal and human).

In other words, mundane astrology deals with purely physical and impersonal factors; with natural cycles and natural laws. The individual personal human element does not enter into it; and the type of prognostication used is of the same nature (theoretically) as that featured in astronomy and meteorology; and at the limit, in sociological sciences using statistical data.

2. Horary Astrology

One might consider horary astrology as a symbolical extension of mundane astrology. The latter dealt with obvious physical cycles having recognizable natural causes susceptible (theoretically at least) of "scientific" correlations. The year-cycle is caused by the physical motion of the earth; physiological heredity may be traced to theoretically observable and measurable chromosomes and genes. Horary astrology, on the other hand, takes for granted that every moment of time can be considered as the beginning of a cycle which holds in its seed-pattern the secret of the development (or destiny) of anything "born" or initiated at that moment.

There, of course, we leave all physical natural reality, and everything susceptible of "scientific" investigation. The idea that a horary chart can satisfactorily reveal the success or failure of a trip or speculation, and answer any question asked of an astrologer casting the chart for the time the question reaches him—is obviously absurd from a “scientific” standpoint. There we deal no longer with measurable facts, but solely with interpretations.

Horary astrology works just as well as divination by the Chinese hexagrams of the Yi-king, and no better. It operates purely on a basis of conventional symbolism, even though there be very definite and universal principles back of all similar types of symbolism of life-interpretation, principles ruled by a special, but none the less effective, type of “logic.”

All astrological fortune-telling, all exact prediction of events fated to occur to a certain person or a collective entity belongs to the realm of horary astrology. It does not matter whether the prediction is made from a birth-chart or a strictly “horary” chart. As long as particular concrete events are predicted, the principle of horary astrology is used—that is, the principle of symbolical interpretation. This principle is incompatible with what we call now “science” for it stresses a purely individual factor and the individual gift of the person who interprets. “Science” is a strictly objective and collective system of knowledge.

3. Natal Astrology

The last paragraph will be made clearer by studying briefly the basis of natal astrology and so-called “progressions.” Natal astrology includes three things, quite different in essence.

- a. The radical birth-chart, which conveys knowledge as to the nature, character and particular physio-psychological form of the native.
- b. Progressions, which constitute a system of interpretation of the phases of development of the native's life.
- c. Transits, which refer to the manner in which conditions in the outer world at every moment affect the welfare and character of the native.

The radical birth-chart can be considered, as Marc Edmund Jones does, as a horary chart answering the question: What is to be the character and destiny of this person? If so, then the principle of horary astrology applies to natal astrology. Definite concrete events may be foretold according to the rules of horary procedure (the Radix system is a species of such a procedure); and there is no possibility that we can see of claiming any “scientific” character to it.

On the other hand the natal chart may be considered from the standpoint of mundane astrology. We may consider the native as a nexus of cosmic-magnetic forces emanated from planets and stars, and study this dynamic configuration as we study a weather-chart determining zones of high and low pressure, the direction and intensity of the wind, etc. This point of view can theoretically lead to “scientific” data, provided an enormous amount of statistics and comparisons of charts be made.

But—and here is a capital point—there is no room that we can see in such an approach for “progressions.” Transits may be accepted as they represent astronomical facts and the effect of actual relationships between moving celestial bodies and a particular pattern of energies supposed to represent accurately the native. But all progressions (secondary, primary and so-called “symbolical”) are interpretations and not facts. All progressions are purely symbolical. They correspond to nothing real, in terms of physical and “scientific” reality. How could they ever be included in a “scientific” system? The idea seems preposterous considering the basis of modern “science.” The very multiplicity of systems of progressions; the way in which claims are made for the excellency of this or that system and, in certain cases, one system works, in others, the others; the number of factors, or variables, involved,—so that no definite event can ever be pictured with certainty with reference to any particular progressed configuration;—these, and other facts make “progressions” incompatible with “scientific” method.

The “scientific” method is based essentially on the principle of induction. It says that “a correlation which has been found true in a number of cases, and has never been found false, has a certain assignable degree of probability of being always true” (Bertrand Russell). What interpretation of definite correlation of astrological factors “has never been found false”? What is left, in the way of “scientific” approach, is the statistical method. But here again we find that this method hardly befits natal astrology; for . . . “It might be thought that a statistical average is not very different from a rule with exceptions, but this would be a mistake. Statistics, ideally, are accurate laws about large groups; they differ from other laws only in being about groups, not about individuals.” (Bertrand Russell. “The Analysis of Matter.” p. 191).

In other words, we believe that it is absolutely necessary to distinguish definitely between the reading of a radical chart and the interpretation of “progressions.” This, both from a theoretical and a practical standpoint; for, practically speaking, if radical charts never fail to reveal the basic nature of a person—when broadly interpreted by an astrologer with psychological insight,—“progressions” can never be absolutely relied upon, at least as far as the prognostication of definite and concrete events are concerned.

How shall we then conclude the foregoing? We have stated so far rather bluntly our point of view; but these statements were made to call forth criticism and discussion. They are to be taken really as questions. If what we said is not correct, then what? If any system of "progressions" can be called "scientific" in the sense in which modern scientists use the word, we shall welcome the proof. Our aim is not to invalidate astrology, but to make it valid and acceptable to all men of intelligence and culture—by defining it and making its methods philosophically consistent, logical and intellectually honest. If astrology, including foretelling of events by progressions, can be demonstrated to be "scientific" by some manner of proof, we should indeed rejoice that it is so. But will the proof be forthcoming?

As already stated we can conceive of mundane astrology, in the way we defined the term and barring all "progressions," becoming a true science. This, because it deals with facts of the earth, with planetary and collective factors. We can conceive that the weather, earthquakes and the like may be accurately predictable by mundane astrology—possibly along the lines of Edward Johndro's work—just as eclipses and tides are predictable. But we cannot see how horary astrology and any type of "progressions" can ever come under the heading of "science." And we are very doubtful that natal astrology as a whole can ever be advantageously considered as such.

The greatest value of natal astrology, we believe, lies in its being an accurate representation of the individual human being. And we claim that no "science" can ever deal with the individual as an individual. Science can analyze and study the collective and universal elements which make up the individual; it may learn everything about the parts of the whole, but the wholeness of the whole—the individualhood or selfhood—must always be outside of its reach.

This applies to astrology inasmuch as we believe that, while statistical knowledge as to the probability of a particular astrological configuration signifying a well-defined human characteristic is possible, no one can ever predict from a given nativity where this configuration exists exactly how it will manifest itself in that individual case. We have read that the conjunction Mars-Neptune is an index of "genius," or a favorable aspect of Jupiter to Neptune an index of great wealth. But all that can be "scientifically" known is that among all nativities featuring these configurations a certain percentage will show genius and wealth of any particular type (destructive genius makes criminals; there can be physical and spiritual wealth; etc.). If a child is born with the conjunction Mars-Neptune (and there is one child in about fifty so endowed), it will ever remain impossible to say with "scientific" certainty that he will show genius, and especially what type of genius this will be, if it is at all.

The knowledge thus known is of the same order as that gathered from statistics as to the percentage of blondes and brunettes, of children born with deficient or hyperactive pituitary glands, of twins and quintuplets, etc. Is this in what the value of natal astrology consists? Not so, to our mind. Such statistical knowledge may provide astrology with a foundation of potentialities (not even facts); but that is, at best, only a part of the meaning of natal astrology. Similarly, knowledge as to the kind of stones and materials likely to enter into the structure of a Chinese temple, will be only at best the foundation of the knowledge to be derived from a study of Chinese architecture. What is more significant is the form and purpose of the whole building.

Likewise what is of vital significance in a birth-chart is the total configuration of the astrological factors it contains. No "science" can reveal the individual significance of that total configuration;—of any total configuration as an individual wholeness. Science is based on the intellect and its analytical logic; and what is needed to reveal such a significance is another faculty. We may call it "intuition," or speak of "psychic power" or "seership." At any rate, what is needed is the ability to perceive the significance of a total configuration as a whole.

Obviously this is very much nearer to the esthetic than to the scientific faculty. The artist sees a painting—or a landscape—as a whole; and as a whole, it has significance to him, if he be truly an artist. The real musician apprehends the significance of a melody as a whole, not dividing it into separate tones or intervals (planets or aspects, in astrology). The meaning of this is, that natal astrology (as well as horary astrology) has significance and value in terms of interpretation, not in terms of mere facts. And to put the emphasis on interpretation rather than fact is quite unscientific; for the goal of "science" is to reduce interpretation, and all individual judgment or evaluation, to an absolute minimum.

Is then astrology ever to become "scientific"? Wherever it deals with impersonal matter-of-fact indications, as in strictly mundane astrology—or even with large collectivities in which individual integrated values count for little if anything—; there possibly astrology may become the foundation of a new and all-inclusive science, of a statistical type. But wherever individual situations and configurations are considered, there astrology depends on pure symbolism and intuitional (or "holistic"—to use General Smüts' term) perception. This is always the case in horary astrology, and also whenever natal astrology is called upon to give testimony to the strictly individual character of a particular personality. And likewise whenever a chart is "progressed"—according to any system. All "progressions" are actually symbolical, for the equivalence of a day for a year, or four-minutes for a year, is obviously a purely symbolical idea. What could make it a fact? It is undoubtedly an idea which works on the average and within certain limits; but that does not make it a "scientific" fact. Before it could become such a fact—even a statistical fact—each system of progressions would have to be given a certain scope and field of application, and a complex and rather mysterious relationship should have to be established between the daily rotation of the earth and its annual revolution round the sun. And if such a relationship were "scientifically" established in terms of the operation of magnetism or of some other cosmic force, one should still explain why it does not always operate. We should also add that the meaning of "houses" will ever remain a hard factor to explain in any system of astrology attempting to answer to the criterions of science.

All of which makes many questions to answer before astrology may claim the epithet "scientific." Why not rather use the less cumbersome one of "artistic"? Does the phrase "art of life" sound worse to our Western ears than "science of life"? Presumably it does; so thoroughly imbued we are with the magic of "science."

So, perhaps, we should try to become "scientific"! In this case may we suggest a little bit of research-work which, we believe, would be more conducive to "scientific" knowledge than many others which have been started of late? It is based on the fact that it is more valuable to test "scientific" material where it fails than where it succeeds to back up a theory.

To take any known event (earthquake or death or stock-market crash), make a chart (radical or progressed) for it, and say triumphantly: "There, you see, it worked! Is it not wonderful?"—does not prove much. For possibly a similar astrological configuration might not have produced or would not produce the same effect at some other time. Then, where is the proof? It seems that most astrologers have subconsciously no belief in the validity of astrological prognostications, and that they need to reassure themselves and their public that, after all, there is something in astrology—or in any new scheme of progressions, etc.

What we propose is to select a dozen rather strong astrological configurations—as for instance January 1, 1900 or December 2, 1899—when most planets were in Sagittarius opposing Neptune. Then on such a day as selected, make an international search for people born that day with every one of the signs rising. Let us say that we find ten persons born with Aries 1°; ten, with Aries 10°; ten, with Aries 20°—on this December 2, 1899; and so on, for every sign. That would make 360 persons born with practically the same planetary positions, but with 36 different set-ups of houses. If now, one had an accurate record of the outer and inner development of these lives, one would have a most valuable material for study.

To put it more simply, let us all, astrologers, make an effort to get collections of at least ten nativities, exactly identical or as identical as we can find; and see where the destinies and characters of the natives differ and where they agree. Let us take the birth-chart of a poor dumb boy in the slums and the identical birth-chart of a highly cultured gentleman on Park Avenue; and see why the two natives had different lives. And if there is a few minutes of difference between births, how such a small difference operated.

These would constitute real tests as to the validity of the "scientific" claim for natal astrology. But if the tests failed; if ten persons born, in New York State with the same chart showed ten sufficiently different destinies and characters, would it destroy the validity of natal astrology? Not in the least. It would only transpose this validity from the plane of "scientifically" demonstrable fact, to that of significant formation or idea.

The facts of these ten lives may be different. Yet the significance of these different facts to the ten individuals, as individuals and in function of their respective collective environment, may be identical. And that is, to our mind, what counts above all. Astrology, at least natal astrology, deals primarily with significances and only secondarily with facts. But the realm of significance is not open to every one; for it is that of consciousness—and consciousness is aristocratic. It is "artistic" and not "scientific." It is based on the Individual, not on the Collective.

General Forecast

for those born October 24th to November 22nd

NEPTUNE

Friends; Ideal Attachments, Both to Persons and Aspirations—Hopes and Wishes

Neptune in the sign Virgo, in the 11th house of your solar horoscope, has dominion during his stay there (1928-1942) over the eleventh house matters listed above; a fairly complete analysis of this transit has already been given in American Astrology for October, 1933.

During the year under discussion, the influence that you feel from Neptune in your eleventh house is complicated by the transit of Saturn through the opposite sign and house of your solar nativity; and although the actual opposition of these planets does not take place until March of 1936, the polarization of their conflicting influences in opposing signs, and emotional houses, is likely to prove confusing. This will be taken up more completely with respect to the influence of Saturn in Pisces in the fifth house of your solar nativity, in the latter part of this article. With respect to Neptune, the transit of Saturn, even before the actual oppositional contact, will tend to bring down to earth your emotional and idealistic nature which under this transit of Neptune has been flying pretty high. When Saturn goes into Pisces (February 15, 1935) you are likely to be forced to make, or begin to make, some important readjustments in your notions of people; put yourself on guard, at this time, against disappointment in people, for Saturn here is likely to clip the wings of some of the Neptunian dreams and enthusiasms. In the more intimate personal sphere, Neptune may at this time appear to be refusing his support to your dreams, aspirations, plans, hopes, and wishes: if this seems to be the case, you will know it is because your aspirations need to be thought of, and dealt with, more rigidly in terms of reality.

During December, Jupiter in your natal Scorpio makes the sextile of Neptune (December 19) and this is an optimistic aspect of the first water, tending to fill you full of hopes, good cheer, and enthusiasms . . . of exactly the sort which, if you let the bubble expand too much, Saturn will later delight to deflate; so be warned, and temper your enthusiasms at this time with common-sense. In February, as Saturn enters your fifth house, Venus makes the opposition to Neptune (February 12); guard at this time against emotional confusion. In March, the opposition of Mercury (March 28) warns against mental upset through worry, and also through matters of romance and younger people. The most upsetting aspect to Neptune during this year comes in October, when Mars in Sagittarius makes the square to Neptune from the second, or money house of your solar horoscope. Watch your finances carefully at this time; guard especially against impractical advice from friends; do not be tempted to make excessive expenditures for purposes of entertaining.

URANUS

Employment and Health (Till March 29):
Then Partnership, Marriage, Public
Popularity, the General Public in Relation to You Personally

Uranus the Incalculable completes (March 29, 1935) his stay in your solar sixth house, and his exit therefrom should put an end to a set of trying conditions, which have been fully discussed in the October, 1933, issue of American Astrology. He makes his entrance into Taurus (March 29) into your solar seventh house, of marriage, partnership, and public popularity, under favorable auspices of Mercury, Venus, and Saturn, and remains there till May of 1942, a period of eight years. This is therefore a very significant and important transit, falling on an angle of your Solar Horoscope.

Uranus is advanced, erratic, incalculable, sudden, and impulsive in his action; he is the planet par excellence of individualism, both in thought and action: explorers, inventors, radicals and liberals of all sorts are under his influence. He represents the individual will, the individual emotion, the individual consciousness: he is therefore dynamic, forceful, heedless of others, intent first and foremost on his own designs and purposes. These designs may, paradoxically enough, be altruistic in the highest sense of the word, conceivably embodying plans for the aid and advancement of the entire human race . . . in the pursuit of which the Uranian is none the less capable of ignoring the trouble he is making for those around him. For Uranus thinks in large breath-taking concepts, and being so absorbed with his ideals he frequently misses the small, individual problems around him.

Transitting your seventh house of partnership, marriage, and association, Uranus will have a double effect: (1) on you personally and your dealings with people around you, and your popularity in the world; (2) on those around you, making them somewhat difficult for you to deal with because of conflicting viewpoints.

As Uranus comes out of your sixth house, you are likely to feel, pretty suddenly, a release from a restricting and irritating restriction: this is particularly likely to be true, because at almost the same time, Saturn comes out of your Solar fourth house, releasing you from some restricting influence, real or imagined, in your domestic environment, or in personal matters. You are likely to feel, from both these shackles' removal at the same time, an up-surge of good spirits, optimism, and plain physical vitality and energy, which is pretty sure to manifest itself in your way of thinking, living, and dealing with people. It will be necessary for you to hold this vitality strictly in leash, lest through it you become too arrogant and aggressive for your own best interests. You are likely now to be downright, tactless, stubborn, unwilling to yield an inch to the other fellow, and not especially careful how you phrase what you have to say. This is a good time to remember that you catch more flies with sugar than you do with vinegar: and especially you will have to remember this because the flies you are hunting for are themselves fairly difficult game right now. Everything that you are warned about above, in yourself, is true, and doubly true of those around you—for this influence, coming to you from the seventh house of your solar horoscope, affects you through others more than directly through yourself. Partners, associates, marriage partners, are likely to be difficult to get along with at this time: it is likely to seem to you that everyone you are associated with is in a conspiracy to make things difficult for you, and if you yield to the temptation either to feel sorry for yourself, or to get angry, you are going to make a lot of trouble for yourself.

But because Uranus is an individual planet, it is a planet over which the individual can exercise great control. The Key-Words for dealing with this transit of Uranus are Tolerance and Cooperation. If you try, earnestly, to get the other fellow's viewpoint under this condition; if you are willing to come to a compromise (no matter whether in a business or a personal matter); if you try to find the middle, and mutually acceptable course, instead of insisting on your own pet method of procedure, you will find that your associates, as represented by Uranus at this time, will be willing to cooperate with you. Even the most stubborn and recalcitrant of them can be made by soft words, and especially by reason tactfully discussed, to abandon their stubbornness, and see the light. They may do it grudgingly, it is true, but if you approach them with tolerance, and make them see that you understand their viewpoint, they will be forced to give in, even though they may not do it very graciously.

Above all you must remember that under this condition, there will be very few issues that you will be able to force through exactly as you want them, by main strength and ignorance; the vast majority of the situations in which you deal with other people will require at this time the maximum of jockeying and diplomatic tactics. If you try now simply to force your will on others, you will simply have an explosion: the irresistible force will meet the immovable body, and there will be plenty of excitement, but no progress. The strain of continued diplomacy and restraint during this period may wear on your nerves, upset you nervously: the best thing to do when you feel this coming on is not to give into it in loss of temper or emotional upset, but merely to retire and be alone for a little while, if only for a few hours: relax: there is nothing like rest to put taught nerve back in shape again. Do not try under this influence to go full tilt all the time, but plan your life so as to get as much sleep and rest as possible, and some time, however brief, to be alone each day.

There is a good constructive side to Uranus which the following of the above indications ought in some measures to develop for you. Your field will broaden under this transit; you will meet people; and if you do not yield to the above-warned-against tendencies to nervousness and quarrelsomeness, you should find yourself becoming well-liked by some very interesting people. This is a good time for intellectual, or artistic contacts: you may be tempted to join some society of advanced thinkers, or occult students; or some political organization which has as its purpose the advancement of society along unique lines. Through Tolerance and Cooperation, you can help these more constructive sides of Uranus to manifest in your life, in preference to the merely nervous, temperamental expression which is his negative, and least attractive, side.

Be especially careful of all the above when the Sun and Mercury are going through Taurus (April 22-May 22); and again in July when the Sun is in Leo in square, and Mars comes to your solar ascendant (August 8) opposing Uranus. This will be a critical time for all the Uranian matters discussed above. Saturn makes the sextile of Uranus, however, it being exact October 9, and operative for a long time both before and after that date, and under this stabilizing ray, you will have an opportunity to find out something about the constructive side of both planets.

SATURN IN AQUARIUS

Till February 15, 1935

Saturn is now passing out of the fourth house of your Solar horoscope, removing some restricting influence from your personal or domestic life; also removing his opposition to your tenth house of credit and worldly position. During the last months of his stay there, he should sweep the things that have been restricting you pretty much into the discard, for he receives only good aspects after December first; the exit of Saturn from this dark angle will leave you with a mental attitude considerably changed, and much better able to cope more cheerfully with the world around you.

SATURN IN PISCES

February 15, 1935, to April 25, 1937

Saturn enters the watery, mystical, unstable sign Pisces February 15, in the fifth house of your solar nativity, which governs emotions, inner desires, love affairs, young people, amusement, and games of chance, in trine to your Sun and solar first house. As has been said under the previous note on Neptune, he here becomes polarized by sign in opposition with that great mysterious planet, from his own sign Pisces, and therefore, from this joint transit, you may expect some unusual developments in the department of emotions and affections. Saturn is a cold, restricting, limiting influence, and in your fifth house he is likely to bring you emotional disappointments, or in some way to limit, your emotional life. This may be due actually to the people with whom you are associated (in this connection it will be well to bear in mind the reading of Uranus) or it may be due to your own attitude towards them, for you will now tend to be discontented, and to feel hampered by the very people who, possibly, are most desirous of helping you.

Saturn here affords an excellent opportunity to you to take a good square look at yourself, reestimating and reevaluating your inner wishes and desires in terms of the realistic work-a-day world; you may find that you are discontented because your aspirations (whether with respect to your career, or with respect to other people and their relations with you) are not compatible with reality. Saturn is the Great Deflator; in your fifth house he will not necessarily destroy your ideals, but he will show them to you in a different light than you have seen them before, and show you also the way by which, on the world's own terms, you can make your ideals become real, and not merely glittering dreams. Saturn is the Great Realist: he pins things down to earth, makes you accept your life in terms of the earth, rather than in terms of any imaginative heaven to which we are all so willing to escape. Saturn in your fifth will cut the mythology out of your life, lop off the unnecessary branches that are obstructing your view of things-as-they-are, and present to you, not a different world from the one you have been imagining, but a world made more beautiful, because it is more real.

In this process of showing us the real in place of the imaginary, or the false, Saturn is likely not always to work with kid gloves; some of his lessons, especially fifth house lessons, hurt; and the best approach to this period is to put yourself in an impersonal frame of mind, and make up your mind not to be hurt, or embittered, or disappointed, by the apparently treacherous, or cold, or false, actions of friends and sweethearts. If you allow yourself to become intensely emotional under this transit of Saturn, you are bound to be hurt by it; and the best thing you can do is to order your living, thinking, and feeling in such a way that others will be powerless to hurt you. There is an ancient occult law to this effect: "Never set your mind or heart on anything, or anyone, to such an extent that you think you cannot do without it." This is an excellent law to bear in mind under the transit of Saturn that you are about to experience; it is similar in feeling to the old cry, "That which I have feared is come upon me." Do not set your heart, or set yourself emotionally, so strongly on anything now that you think you can't do without it, for it will be Saturn's purpose to convince you that you can do without it. Remain detached, aloof, intellectual: try to understand, rather than to feel emotionally, the world around you; and you will in this way escape the worst hurts that Saturn might otherwise bring you.

You will also in this way equip yourself to reap the full measure of Saturn's constructive influence, as indicated above: a realistic realization of the world around you, and a subsequent feeling of added power, personality, and control over yourself, your life, and your environment.

During this year, watch out especially for emotional upsets April 22 and July 19; for mental strain and worry from emotional causes May 13, August 20, and November 26. During September when Mars from your second house squares Saturn (September 24) you will have to look out for a very treacherous period; guard your finances, as well as your emotions, carefully at this time. As said above, under Uranus, the sextile of Saturn and Uranus October 9 gives you a good chance to bring out and understand the constructive phases of these two great planets.

JUPITER IN SCORPIO

October 10, 1934, to November 11, 1935

Jupiter in your Sun-sign and solar first house for a period of thirteen months is generally accounted a good influence; yet like everything, it has its sides that must be guarded against. Jupiter is known as the Greater Benefic, because he brings health, high spirits, and frequently some share of worldly goods; but the chief danger under the transit of Jupiter through your Sun-sign is that you will feel so healthy, an optimistic, that you will lead an easy-going, pleasant life, enjoying yourself, and allow opportunities to slip by. Jupiter in your Sun-sign will to some extent take the curse off the difficult sides of Uranus and Saturn dealt with above; he lends resiliency to your spirits, and makes it unlikely that you will stay long in the depths of any depression. He will not, however, nullify other influences: he will merely, by supporting your health and your general optimism, enable you to look on the more cheerful side of things.

On the material side Jupiter both gives and takes away; he is likely to increase somewhat your income or earning power, but he is likely also to tempt you to spend it, lavishly, so that you may come out of this influence little better off in material ways than you were when you went into it. But you will probably have had a good time. Jupiter is expansive, make sure that under his influence you are not more of a good fellow than your pocketbook can support. Watch also excessive optimism, especially when Jupiter makes the sextile to Neptune (December 19); be sure your feet are well on the ground at this time. Beware of faulty judgment through too great optimism, and also of extravagant expenditures, at the following times: January 25, February 11, May 1-10, June 21, and especially in August, when Mars enters Scorpio and makes the conjunction to Jupiter August 26.

It is even more necessary to guard against the evils of Jupiter than to wait for his benefits, which, if they are coming at all, have a way of taking care of themselves.

MARS IN LIBRA

Mars stays in the sign Libra from December 12 to July 30, an exceedingly long stay because of retrograde motion; and in the twelfth house of your solar nativity, warrants a special note and warning, since Mars is your ruler, and therefore of especial significance to you.

The twelfth house is the house of Karma, and self-injury; thus this long transit of Mars warns you that during this period you are likely to be your own worst enemy, and with this in mind, you should watch yourself carefully, in order that the dangers outlined under Uranus, Saturn, and Jupiter do not descend on you personally to your great discomfort. In addition to the dates warned against under the other planets all the worst of their influence is likely to be felt at the following times, when the afflictions of Mars in your 12th house makes you particularly likely to make false and harmful moves. At these times, exercise all the self-discipline and self-control at your command; do not quarrel, or take the aggression when you can remain passive, and in general try to retire as much as you can from activity, and especially from emotional matters, and disputes.

December 19-31, January 1-3, March 16-April 6 (probably an emotional upset, or a matter of health. Go cautiously). May 1-9, July 15-19.

MARS IN SCORPIO

July 30 to September 16

Here the full force of Mars descends out of your twelfth house on you personally, with an excess and bubbling-over of energy. Beware especially of the opposition to Uranus on August 8 (see Uranus above) and the conjunction with Jupiter August 26 (see Jupiter above). August 13-22, when Mars trines Saturn and sextiles Neptune, a more progressive and constructive phase of Mars will be faintly discernible, but since this phase falls between a very quarrelsome and a very expansive danger, it will be well to curb your enthusiasms all through the stay of Mars in Scorpio; and especially to curb your expenses, and your emotions.

MARS IN SAGITTARIUS

September 17-October 28

This swift run of Mars through your second house of money is fraught with danger, especially September 24 to October 8 when he squares both Saturn and Neptune. Guard your expenses carefully; beware of loss through pleasure, friends, younger people, and emotional matters: in general, at this time, be conservative and cautious in money matters, and guard against all possibility of loss from any source whatsoever.

MARS IN CAPRICORN

October 29 to December 7

This is the most constructive of Mars' phases this year, in your solar third house. Your mind will be quick, accurate, and dependable. Continue to remember the extravagant tendency of Jupiter on you; but now you can lay plans with confidence, for what comes to your mind, now is likely to be practical, progressive and constructive.

General Forecast

for those born November 23 to December 21

NEPTUNE

Professional or Business Life; standing in the World; Your Credit and Reputation

Neptune in the sign Virgo (1928-1942) is in the tenth house of your solar nativity, where he governs the phases of your life listed above; an analysis of this position with respect to your nativity will be found in American Astrology for November, 1933.

With respect to the present year, the influence of Neptune in your solar tenth house will receive support from the planet Jupiter, transiting in Scorpio, in his own solar twelfth house as well as the twelfth house of your solar nativity. Jupiter in Scorpio has, for purposes of a Sagittarian nativity, something of the force of a Neptunian transit, made more worldly and practical than Neptune's influence, since Jupiter is now in your twelfth house, and the twelfth house is ruled by Neptune. It should be stressed that Neptune's influence is at all times, even under the most favorable of conditions, likely to be confusing and diffusive; that he both awakens dreams, and scatters your interests so that you do not concentrate sufficiently on any one concrete purpose; and therefore, even under the benign Jupiterean influence, you should be careful about confusion and conflict of interests. However, the sextile to Jupiter from your tenth to your twelfth houses (complete and exact Dec. 19, and mildly in force for several weeks both before and after this date) ought to bring you the private clarification of one definite purpose relating to your worldly advancement, and give you the power to concentrate on this, and make the vision clear to yourself. This is a pretty occult procedure. You are not likely to see the results of it for some time; but if there is one outstanding dream of achievement that you can single out as something you wish very much, this is a good time to make clear, to yourself the vision of its accomplishment to hold the image firmly and concretely in your mind of what you want; for by clarifying the image and making its reality a reality to yourself you take, according to occult law, the first private step in the direction of your dream, though in the outer world nothing whatever happens. This, as I say, is a highly occult practise: it depends on the fixity of purpose of the native, and the intensity with which he really desires what he imagines he wants. This is an excellent time to keep your plans to yourself, equip yourself personally for the accomplishment of your plans; put yourself, in other words, internally in tune to accept the things you want when they come. Although this is not a time to expect development in the outer world, it is a time for what is known occultly as Meditation: the blanking of the mind to all ideas but one, and the concentration on that one with the fixed thought that it is accomplished already, all but its manifestations. In this way, according to occult law, you attract to yourself your desire. Try it!

On the practical workaday side, however, you will do well to note the following dates on which the Neptunian influence may be expected to be especially confusing.

Dec. 3-15, personal affairs confuse your professional or business standing or the smooth running of your business life; Feb. 12, a domestic, or personal, or domestic confusion, tending to recur in slightly different form Mar. 5 to Mar. 28; an upset from partnership or association is mildly confusing, April 26; and a similar matter occupies you, June 3. In October, when Mars is in your Solar Ascendant square Neptune (Oct. 8) some personal matter tends to disturb the even tenor of your ways; try to keep yourself at this time from being torn by a multiplicity of interests.

URANUS

Emotions, Inner Desires, Younger People, Amusements, Till March 28; Then Employment and Health

The influence of Uranus in your solar fifth house has been discussed in the November 1933 issue of American Astrology; until March 28th, you will feel the last wearing-off of this condition, which in the past seven years has provided an unusual condition in your sphere of emotional life. This passes now, and Uranus enters the sign Taurus, in the sixth house of your Solar Horoscope where for seven and a half or eight years it influences dynamically matters of Health and Employment. In discussing the sixth house position of Uranus, American Astrology stated (October 1933) "If you don't join the I. W. W. while under this it is a wonder for Uranus in the sixth house has the greatest difficulty keeping a job," and although this does not necessarily mean that you will actually be thrown out of work, it does mean that under this influence you should exercise all the care at your command to hold what you have in the way of employment. It is not so much that through this aspect your superior will simply up and fire you, as that under it you are likely to find your work irksome, irritating, getting on your nerves; in fact you are somewhat more likely to quit, in a fit of temperament, and be sorry for it later than you are actually to be let out by someone else.

For in the sixth house, Uranus has a way of wearing on the nerves indefinitely. In the fifth, he works through your emotions; in the seventh, through the difficulties presented through other people; in the tenth, through superiors, and the world in general. But in the sixth, the responsibility is squarely on your own shoulders: he appears there to work on you directly, lowering your vitality, and raising your nervous tension, thus impairing your health, and making you liable to irritation, discontent, temperament, and therefore trouble. Under Uranus in the sixth house, the best motto is KEEP COOL. Details of work are likely to get on your nerves, and plenty of them will pile up; if you allow these to rattle you, you let in all the most destructive of the Uranian forces. The best plan is slowly and carefully and methodically to plan your work, and do it piece by piece no matter how much there seems to be, nor how endless it appears. If you approach things this way, you will save yourself not only trouble, but nervousness and illness.

Uranus works on the health, in the sixth house, through the nerves; and any submission to nerves at this time, or the encouragement of any tendency to be jumpy, is sure to demand payment in health: nervous indigestion, headache, neuritis: because of the position in Taurus, glandular disturbance especially of the thyroid: in extreme cases, neurasthenia. All those things can be avoided by calmness. Avoid a tendency to work at full tilt all the time; this will only wear you out, and in the long run you won't get as much done as if you methodically poke along. Guard your diet: a good digestion is your most valuable asset, and you can retain it now by exercising a strict guard on the food you eat. Go slowly in eating, too: Uranus here will make you want to get through with all things in a hurry, and you cannot preserve a good digestion if you bolt your food. Do not allow anything to get on your nerves; learn to laugh at the details that seem so annoying—laugh at them, and get them done, but don't worry or fret about them.

The following are times when you should guard especially in all the above matters, January 4-20, emotional matters likely to be upsetting to the health, and to your work; also mental worries: March 20 to April 20, restriction and limitation and irritation in employment, but a good progressive period if you go slowly. June 11, guard emotions. July 29, slightly nervous time, until August 5. And August 8th, when Mars opposes Uranus, watch closely against overwork, overstimulation, and too energetic activity. Mars is in your twelfth at this time, opposing Uranus, and you are likely to work yourself to the bone if you aren't careful. November 7-15 is a mild repetition of this danger. It's all right to be conscientious, but not to the point of endangering your health and peace of mind. You can get everything done without this.

SATURN IN AQUARIUS

till Feb. 15, 1935

A discussion of Saturn in Aquarius, in your Solar third house, has already been given in American Astrology for November 1933. This deepening and sobering mental influence winds up under favorable auspices during the next few months, Saturn tending, by the good aspects he meets in December and January, and by the conjunction with the planet Mercury just as he leaves Aquarius, to leave your mind in a calm, serious, and constructive state as he goes on into your solar fourth house.

SATURN IN PISCES

Feb. 15, 1935 till April 25, 1937.

Saturn in the 12th sign of the Zodiac, and the fourth house of your Solar nativity, during the next two years presents a planetary situation of the utmost importance to you. For Saturn is primarily the planet of the realities of life, and his transit over an angle of the horoscope is sure to bring problems, changes, and possibly limitations into the life, of a very realistic and tangible nature. The great outer planets discussed in the previous paragraphs, Neptune and Uranus, are very important, and their influence must be borne in mind; but the focal point of all influences is very likely to be Saturn: he tends to present, concentrated, the sum-total of all influences, so that it is almost not too much to say that he who has solved the problem of Saturn has solved the problem of life. For Saturn provides the concentration and reason necessary to cope with the diffusive influence of Neptune; he provides the mental stability and insistence on poise which alone can make the Uranian ray constructive; he supplies the skepticism and doubt with which to harness Jupiter's exuberance and excessive optimism and extravagance; he forces the fiery energies of Mars into constructive channels and he focuses the individuality of the Sun, and the personality of the Moon, into a clear, cold, energetic force. In his constructive manifestation, he is ambitious, intellectual, patient, executive, and progressive; in his negative manifestation, he is worrisome, arrogant, selfish, impatient, and destructive. In both manifestations, he insists, eventually, on driving home his lessons of calm, patience, and personal evolution; and for those who learn his lessons quietly, he has great worldly rewards. For those who rebel, he has merely a repetition of his lessons, until, in one way or another, they are finally learned.

As Saturn comes to the fourth angle of your nativity, you will feel his influence through that department of your life which deals with your home, your domestic problems, and your personal life (as opposed to your business problems and your status in the world of affairs). Because at this time Neptune is in your tenth house (see above) and because Saturn now occupies Neptune's sign in the opposing house of your nativity, these two vibrations will tend to become mixed up and confused, especially as you approach March of 1936, when the opposition of the two planets is complete. However, during this entire period, even before the exact opposition, the polarization of the two planets in opposing signs will be felt, and you must guard at this time against two things: (1) that the diffusive influence of Neptune in your department of business and worldly position does not make your personal life unhappy; and (2) that the restrictions and disappointments of your domestic and personal life do not have a depressing effect on you, and thus interfere with your efficiency in the world of affairs. This should be considered in light of what has been previously said about Uranus, and his relation to your work and health; for a proper adjustment of these three forces will at this time provide you with the proper road to travel.

Saturn is by nature cold and restrictive; and in the sign Pisces he meets a condition very uncongenial to his nature. He is, as it were, an unwelcome guest in your fourth house, which because of the nature of Pisces is naturally a warm and rather comfortable place. The warmth of the house will not, however, thaw out the guest; rather the guest, like the little King of the Golden River, will chill the house merely by his presence. Strange, foreign, uncomfortable conditions will under this transit of Saturn crop up in your domestic and personal life: either they will actually crop up by the introduction of new conditions, or you will in some way or other become discontented with conditions as they are, which discontent will make them unpleasant to you. For Saturn works both from the outside world in, and from the inside world out: he is likely both to present unpleasant conditions, and to condition your mind so that you will become displeased and fretful with things which perhaps have seemed all right enough before. If you are to get the most out of Saturn, you must guard against both of these conditions by resolving to make the best of things. The watchword for Saturn is Submit. Take what comes, and take it with a good grace. The expression, "You'll take it and like it!" is precisely what Saturn, in one way or another, is always saying, especially when he comes to an angle, or passes over a sensitive point of a nativity. You will now be forced to "take and like" a whole lot of things that may at first seem like pretty severe medicine. No doubt they are severe medicine; but it is medicine against which you cannot successfully rebel: if you do, you will get not only the medicine, but a spanking besides, for making a fuss. In a very literal sense, this latter is true.

At this time, three angles of the great square are occupied in your Solar nativity: the first by the Sun, the fourth by Saturn, and the tenth by Neptune. This leaves the seventh blank—the seventh, which governs partnership and marriage: and you will tend at this time to reach out in an effort to complete your life, and yourself, in partnership, or in marriage. Your life will appear to center around this desire for completion in another person; and some of the discontent, in your personal and business life too, will come about because of your inability to achieve this union with someone else. It would seem that this is one of the restrictions of Saturn that you will have to fight out by yourself, for above all, Saturn teaches self-sufficiency; and until conditions are better, you will be forced to learn to find some degree of completion in yourself. Saturn rarely offers a compromise, or a middle way; you will be forced to fight out this problem by yourself, achieve in yourself the balance and completion that you now imagine to exist in partnership; then later, when you have gained mastery over yourself, poise, and some degree of self-sufficiency, the wished-for partnership will come along, and you will be able to appreciate it that much the more, because you will be yourself a more complete and appreciative person.

Beware, under this influence of Saturn, of depression, gloom, and despondency from the problems and limitations of your personal and domestic life; beware especially that these things do not get a hold on you, to the hurt of your worldly standing, occupation, and health. Reason is the cure for worry; think your problems through rationally and boldly; repeat when you have a problem the old verses:

"For every evil under the sun
There is a remedy or there is none:
If there be one, try and find it:
If there be none, never mind it."

Usually there is one. Another, good rule-of-thumb for dealing with Saturn's problems is to imagine that the worst you fear is going to happen; then decide what you will do if the worst does happen; make this condition a reality in your imagination; accept it, and solve it: you'll be amazed at how quickly your worries disappear under this method. Worry is the product of uncertainty: as soon as a thing is pinned down to certainty, worry disappears. Pin it down, in advance, to the worst possibility; solve it; and worry flies away.

The times at which Saturn's most oppressive influence will be felt this year are tabulated here; however, you should guard against its effects in general at all times. April 20-24, emotional disturbance, hurt, and worry. May 11-15, mental upset, worry; May 22-June 22, focusing around June 1, physical debility, exhaustion, nervousness, tendency to depend on others, and be bothered by others both; July 17-21, emotional disturbance and depression—watch out for effect on worldly status; August 18-22, repetition of the foregoing; September 18-30, great personal problems, very upsetting (see Mars in Sagittarius below); Nov. 18-28 a slight personal conflict, somewhat upsetting—beware of excess of emotion.

JUPITER IN SCORPIO Oct. 10, 1934 to Nov. 11, 1935

Jupiter's transit in your solar twelfth house this year has been partially discussed under the Neptune heading. In general, this transit of Jupiter provides personal well-being through feelings of courage and optimism and an ability to be self-sufficient, rather than actual material benefits. Thus the position of Jupiter here will assist you in summoning the self-control, reserve, poise, and self assurance necessary to combat the more difficult, positive manifestations of Saturn and Uranus. The twelfth house is said to have some relation with your ability to sell the fruits of your work and in this way may possibly yield some material benefit indirectly; however, the chief use of Jupiter here is immaterial, inner and personal. He will enable you to derive rest and comfort from solitude; give you the capacity to find enjoyment in personal occupations; and in general will give you the ability to retire from the pressing conditions around you. One condition during the year is really harmful to this twelfth house Jupiter, and this is the transit of Mars (complete Aug. 26—see Mars in Scorpio) which is likely to make you too aggressive for your own good, and impel ill-timed action. Aside from this, you may expect to derive especial benefit through relaxation and private solitude, at the following times: Feb. 18-22; Mar. 10-18; Apr. 2-6; May 24-28. July 2-10; Sept. 1-15; and Nov. 7-11. These are good times to renew your strength through rest and solitude.

MARS IN LIBRA

Dec. 12, 1934 to July 30, 1935

The long transit of Mars in Libra in your solar house of friends warns you against excessive social activity, and also against involvement with friends, especially emotional involvement. You may also at this time watch out for enmity, and unreliability among your friends, and for your own tendency to create enmity by rash speech and action. Especially be on guard against these matters on the following dates: Dec. 25-Jan. 4, financial loss through friends and society; Mar. 12-Apr. 10, emotional disturbance, rashness, impetuosity; May 15-19, emotional; July 15-19, high-strung, nervous, possibility of financial loss through partnership.

MARS IN SCORPIO

July 30-Sept. 16

Mars in your twelfth solar house warns you against enmity, especially in matters of employment, culminating when Mars opposes Uranus (Aug. 8); also against health disturbances through overwork, worry, and nervousness. Do everything you can at this time to keep your personal life and emotions on an even keel. Also, as Mars approaches the conjunction of Jupiter (Aug. 26) beware of false courage, too great aggressiveness, and the formulation of unsound and too-optimistic plans. Mars here will give you every opportunity to do and say the wrong things, by making you high-strung and nervous, and you must fight this influence with great self-control.

MARS IN SAGITTARIUS

Sept. 17-Oct. 8

Mars in your birth sign first meets the square to Saturn (Sept. 24) and then the square to Neptune (Oct. 8). He makes no good aspect in your birth sign this year, and he will therefore tend to concentrate during his passage, all the most confusing influences of Neptune, and all the most discontented and depressing influences of Saturn, as discussed above. This is the time for you to be especially on guard against all that you have been warned against in Neptune and Saturn; control your temperament and your temper, your desire to forge ahead, and especially your wish at this time to "tell the world." You cannot now be aggressive to any good purpose, and anger will net you only trouble, so guard against it carefully.

MARS IN CAPRICORN

Oct. 29-Dec. 7

This transit in your house of money meets with only good aspects. However, it will be well for you to watch your expenditures carefully at this time, for Mars' passage is very swift, and he may easily tend to spend everything you get. Watch out for extravagance!

Message of the Stars

for December, 1934

General Tendencies

An active month. A month that should be characterized by constructive business efforts and new, romantic opportunities for accomplishing new ventures successfully through friendship, social contacts, love and marriage, travel, communications, and a sparkling, electric feeling that conditions are moving. The less fortunate features indicate attacks on the government from obscure sources; propaganda which incites the dissatisfaction of the laboring classes; while subtle and underhand methods may be used to undermine progress by both domestic and foreign foes.

The month is initiated under a square of Mercury to Saturn which will cause a temporary decline in the forward movement begun in November. General business may react with some uncertainty and nervousness to this aspect, but the new Moon of the 6th indicates renewed courage, a generous spirit of cooperation and a sincere effort to achieve the best results possible by those in power—heads of organizations, industrialists, bankers, governmental legislators, etc.

From the 10th to the 23rd Venus, the Sun and Mercury (representing our daily activities of heart, vitality and mind) in Sagittarius form interlaced aspects of great benefit by successfully sextiling Saturn and trining Uranus. Thus bringing to a focus constructive forces operating from various angles to produce most satisfactory results for past and present activities and conditions. The major aspects of Christmas week are Venus trine Neptune and sextile Jupiter, completing a period in which conditions should improve steadily, both in individual and national affairs.

It is significant that in the two cycles of aspects to Saturn and Uranus that the sextiles are to the former and the trines to the latter, and at the same time these two planets are in orb of a sextile to each other which combines all these aspects into a unit of progress. Saturn being the planet of organization, conservation and building has a natural affinity for the sextile, which is an aspect of growth, work harmoniously achieved, labor that proves of basic worth and efforts that bring enduring results. Uranus is the magician; the astonishing event or person, the novel surprising situation; and being trine to our marching hosts of activities brings a quality of "luck" to all that we attempt this month.

For the trine is an inspirational aspect and almost effortless in action and in producing satisfaction or contentment, and with Uranus the magic carpet may appear, or rabbits out of a hat. But we know that such effortless conditions are not without cause. The same old law of "Cause and Effect" is still at work granting to us the fruits of past work, intense application, unselfish cooperation and unshakable faith in Law and Principle. Planets in Sagittarius increase this faith, and this month it should move mountains—mountains of past impotency, discouragement and despair.

On the 11th of December Mars enters the cardinal air sign Libra, where it will remain until July 29th, 1935. This is the dynamo that will force the wheels of world events into action along the lines they are now (and have been) directed. Power will be added to power during the coming seven months, and as the direction is constructive or destructive, so it will go.

Mars is energy, but as Libra is the sign of its detriment it may express this energy too freely through dissipation rather than controlled direction and sustained effort. Refer to page 28 of the April 1934 issue of AMERICAN ASTROLOGY. In this sign it will bring about serious questions involving international relationships, marital affairs of high personages, strongly competitive markets, responsibilities involving partnerships and gain from business and professions. As it begins to contact the aspects Jupiter formed in the past year we may expect conditions begun in September-October, 1933, may be picked up—brought to a focus, elaborated, and become militantly objectified. During the next seven months conditions that have been dormant will become externalized; Mars will bring into active manifestation underlying currents, tendencies and influences. Old affiliations will be cut off and new combinations will be established. All of which will apply to nations, governments, business, as well as personal relationships and ownerships.

Mars in Libra is a crusader, fighting for what he considers a just cause; fighting for freedom from restraint—from Alexander the Great to Don Quixote, from worlds to wind mills.—The position tends to idealism, clear vision, and to intensifying the progressive movement of this sign. Libra is always "blowing"—hot or cold; but with Mars as a tenant it is apt to become a hurricane, and if this air of freedom (which is essential to the leadership of cardinal signs and to Mars as the ruler of the Head) is deflected into mutiny and anarchy it is because reason and understanding are shut out. The force of Mars in Libra when inverted may react as pride, obstinacy, belligerency, cruelty and fanaticism; it brings losses in the domestic circle and through carelessness and inferiors.

ASPECTS

First Week

November 29 to December 6

The square of Mercury to Saturn on December 1st is calculated to jar the moving wheels of industry into temporary confusion and consequent loss. There is a thread of treachery running through this period; of duplicity through communications and between nations. There will be recriminations, charges of fraud and deception, while persons or places who have these degrees (22 of Scorpio and Aquarius) emphasized will feel the strictures very strongly. In the progress of business it may be necessary to study methods, to change procedures, to carefully balance accounts and revise budgets.

People who are nervous and impatient will be discouraged, and faith, for the time, will be qualified by very short vision. The aspect creates a feeling of double dealing, of treachery, and a combative intemperance that would just as soon stoop to nefarious means as to open conflict. Accusations against governments and high political figures will be various. Japan may throw a tentative bomb but Russia tosses it back with more effective results. Bavaria may come in for some unfavorable publicity. The degree area is critical and all decisions, promises, changes and movements should be made only when based on accurate information and cold, hard facts.

This aspect is followed on the 3rd by a square of Venus to Neptune which tends to allow people to become self-indulgent, deluded, obsessed by what they consider to be their "rights" (and the other person's wrongs). People feel a secret enmity, and in their intimate relationships there is trouble and deception. For the stage, music, and all artistic efforts along any line this is an inspirational aspect, and if it is used for intensifying intuition with reason as a base, it should be most valuable for those who use feeling as a means of expression.

As there is coincident at the same time (December 3rd) a sextile of Mars to Mercury we may expect the objective mind to be alert and sharp, and to bring a spontaneous response of good sense to bear on any muddle that may be existent. This aspect will clarify the events and conditions of the past few days and set the scene for the operation of insight, wit and humor in the negative atmosphere that an afflicted Neptune creates. It gives the ability to analyse situations (Mercury and Mars are in mutual reception, so Mercury is doubly sure of what he knows, and able to express it explicitly) and to make changes in both domestic and business affairs. Communications, conferences and movements under this configuration should be successfully negotiated.

Second Week

December 6 to December 13

The new Moon of December 6th starts a month that will be extremely active and should, for the most part, be extremely beneficent. It inaugurates movement on a wide scale. Life takes on a swing that carries people, messages, things, on long journeys. Carriers of all kinds are in service. The theatre is at the height of success. The Church and the Law receive new honors. The beginning of a new religious movement may excite wide comment and interest. Chemicals will be very important, both in curative ways and in forms of destruction. Munitions and military stores, Army and Navy affairs will receive active attention, much to their stimulation and expansion. Spain may again be prominent in the News.

However, this lunation also occurs in square aspect with Neptune, which shows a deep undercurrent of destructive power; an element that is working against the solidarity of rational human effort. An element of treachery in high places. A clouded atmosphere that is difficult to pierce, a fog that may engulf the unwary into excesses of self-indulgence and vice. This is not a gentle utopian striving to achieve a heaven on earth, but the forces of darkness intent on raising themselves by destroying others. This influence will probably be most pronounced about December 15. Sober judgment, solid sense, practical values, positive reason are necessary to overcome the morbid emotionalism that permeates this aspect.

Venus sextile Saturn on December 10th. Here we have our feet on the good earth. Our Lady of Love permits herself to be guided by the matter-of-fact, unyielding, astute old man Saturn. And by so doing immediately starts building up a bank account. She would rather play or indulge in her love of luxury and ease but she sees the light of reason, and while it appears to preclude some pleasure she assumes a graceful attitude and accepts his proposal—or proposition. This occurs on the 10th, so imagine her surprise when her fairy god-mother turns this dwarf—Saturn—into Romance under a trine of Venus to Uranus on the 14th.

Third Week

December 13 to December 20

Venus sextile Saturn and trine Uranus Deember 10th and 14th, respectively, are two aspects that are very interesting in that definite business agreements are settled and established through the Venus-Saturn sextile which should have lasting and substantial results, but with the Trine to Uranus on the 14th there is implicated a progressive movement that first places business on a very firm foundation and has an almost immediate expansion and extension with international ramifications; bankers, capitalists, heads of organizations combine to create new avenues of wealth. The trine of Venus to Uranus brings a new spirit of romance, pleasure, adventure and excitement to life, and adds a roseate hue to duty, so personal and social life reflect the glow. Venus in Sagittarius is generous, optimistic, eager and romantic without any aid from Uranus. But with a trine from that Romancer she will dance her way through December, and probably into the arms of love.

On the 15th the Neptunian influence is paramount. It squares Mercury, and will bring grave suspicions of wastefulness in important places as well as in personal affairs. It causes lost energy, and tends to pervert morals. Legal affairs are involved and relatives-in-law are inimical to success. Rumors are without foundation and the utmost care is necessary not to allow scandal to cause a breach. There is a tendency to rashness of speech and action that may be far-reaching in its reverberations. Facts and truth are not present when Neptune and Mercury try to bamboozle one another.

The sextile of the Sun to Saturn occurs on the 16th. This is a very important working aspect, and while it is exact just after midnight Saturday, it is very active for a few days before and after when the Moon is in Aries and Gemini. It will bring very ambitious schemes into organized and practical channels. It will create a fundamental security for future operations, and processes of business, working ideas, amalgamations; expansions may be entered into with great assurance of permanent success. Important persons will prove amenable and those in high places will be favorably disposed. It is conservative but just, and tends to deepen the security of large numbers of people.

As the Sun also parallels Mercury at this time the effect will be to change the public consciousness to a higher level, and to promote a more optimistic outlook.

This expansiveness is given further play by a square of Venus to Mars and a sextile of Jupiter to Neptune within a few hours of each other on the 18th and 19th. While this aspect to Venus is not a powerful configuration for Mars, it is his first aspect since entering Libra, and it is significant that it is a square, and a square to Venus. It is the first clash in a new order; it is a small (apparently) conflict in the midst of a gathering where Harmony has set up its banner. It is a note of excess—it is excitement that is too highly pitched—it is feeling that is not controlled—it is the beginning of what may be a hurricane. At the moment it may seem negligible, but it should be watched and curbed for constructive use, or later it may blow the very foundations out.

The Jupiter-Neptune sextile promotes and expands the finances of the world. Jupiter in its progress in Scorpio has now assumed the place of an important worker in the affairs of mankind. With this aspect it opens large resources which will affect many classes of persons; it brings the higher and lower elements of society into understanding; it heals wounds, it closes breaches. There will be a tremendous uplift for the poor, needy and restricted at this time. Government help will be turned in that direction more than ever, and important changes for the better will be brought about in prison reform and places of confinement. This aspect will increase ambition, persistence and a new self-confidence will arise that is based on a working and producing ability.

Fourth Week

December 20 to December 29

The trine of the Sun to Uranus (December 20) is probably the peak of this period. It indicates renewed and increasing popularity for persons in high political office, for the heads of governments; prestige for scientists, leaders in thought and in literature; brilliant success for social leaders, and for any who are in a position to climb to higher levels of authority. It is an aspect that brings to those who can respond to it, increased magnetism, powerful mental impetus, a sense of and capacity for increased responsibility, and provides unusual and unexpected avenues of expression for their gifts, as well as much publicity. It is a time when new inventions relating to the air—transportation, radio, television, communications—may be presented to the world. The aspects to Uranus this month will probably produce before the gaze of the world a new Leader; one who is great in purpose, scientific in ideas, efficient in execution. One who will be dramatic in action but sincere, definite and independent, and whose personal popularity will be enormous.

A parallel of Mercury and Venus on the 20th increases the brilliance of these aspects and brings cheer, gaiety and happiness. Friends and family are helpful; artistic and social affairs are very successful. It is climaxed by the full Moon, which points off the period with a blaze of glory.

December 23rd gives to Christmas eve a trine of Mercury to Uranus, in 27 degrees of Sagittarius-Aries. Mercury in Sagittarius is naturally philosophical and scientific, but freedom of thought and speech is essential and when aspected favorably by Uranus this freedom is accentuated to high intellectual power. There is wit, ingenuity, originality, and the mind becomes very fertile in very practical ways. Success comes from many directions through this configuration; problems are settled, mental pursuits open and develop with surprising ease; movement, travel, communications to and from result in substantial benefits. There is an element of the unexpected in all that occurs, in every contact, that is exciting and thrilling; even hum-drum affairs have a tingle. It opens up very advanced lines of thought, and at this time should introduce new processes of reform through legislative channels. Humanitarian principles will be accepted to a far greater extent than heretofore through this configuration. It also brings new associates, new outlooks, and financial benefits. Between the 19th and 23rd new curative means may be announced that will be revolutionary in their application to disease.

Venus trines Neptune on the 27th which marks this period as one of the greatest felicity in social and artistic ways. It gives an aspect of luxury and elegance to life, of charm and beauty that fulfills the holiday spirit. It can also bring very material advantages, gifts of value, and complete satisfaction in associational and love affairs. Success comes through artistic ventures, the stage, moving pictures and music.

This is followed by a sextile from Venus to Jupiter on the 28th and the two aspects blend into one harmonious chord of happiness; one that brings both secret and out joys. Persons in public life will benefit extraordinarily under these aspects. It is perhaps an unusually favorable time to get finances in order; to get all affairs settled to the best advantage, and to arrange domestic and business matters on a satisfactory basis. Relatives and associates are inclined to grant favors and things move smoothly. Persons met, friendships formed, matters begun should be continued auspiciously. Financially and socially it is an excellent aspect. The world is moving in a rhythm of readjustment.

THE NEW YEAR

And now we arrive at the terminus of 1934. The 31st of December is a powerful and ominous day. In it occurs the conjunction of the Sun to Mercury, an aspect of power, scope and mental brilliance. The aspect occurs in Capricorn, so the power is set and determined—ambition is not to be downed. This will create in high and important persons the Will to Achieve; plans that have been made will be adhered to inflexibly and will be carried through with intense feeling. These plans have doubtless been in process for some time, and now arrives the moment when they will be suddenly forced into operation. For on this day Mercury also squares Mars, and on January 1st, 1935, Mars squares the Sun.

These squares indicate tremendous disturbances, both terrestrial and human. Districts, places, persons affected by 9 degrees of Capricorn or Libra will feel the upheavals of these adverse rays and conflicts of varying importance will follow. Seismic shocks are indicated for the west coast of the United States, while Persia is involved in a sudden flare of publicity. Plans made secretly and matured quietly will be precipitated violently, arousing antagonistic and combative opposition. Turbulent, rash, headstrong indiscretions will mark this period, difficulties between nations, in marriage, through the opposite sex, and by fire and storm. Domestic matters of all classes are under stress and words will be more than banded about. Scandalous and libelous reports will be circulated. Fraud will be practiced to a wide extent, and those people will be luckiest who control their tongues, their tempers and their appetites.

An outbreak of criminal deeds will add to the excitability and tension of this period, while wires, cables, newspapers will carry news that may fan hostile words into disastrous results. Guarded emotions, mental poise, steadiness in action and control in speech will be necessary to save the day.

Financial Forecast

by

A. R. WOOD, C. E.

The month of December in markets and finance from an Astrological viewpoint will be more irregular and erratic than usual. While December is the month of Sagittarius, the Archer, it will take considerable sharp-shooting to profit marketwise this month. This is not to be construed as a pessimistic or bearish statement, but simply that we expect a trading market.

The chart for the Solar Ingress into Sagittarius at Washington, D. C., read from the money, business, crops and speculative angles further confirms this. Pluto is the ruler of the second house squared by Uranus, the now familiar governmental influence. This is certainly not favorable for money making, especially since Pluto is also squared by Jupiter from the fifth, the house of speculation. Pluto is, however, sextile to Neptune and Mars, the rulers of the fourth or house of crops and foods. Neptune and Mars are also sextile to Jupiter and Mercury from the fifth or house of speculation. This would certainly indicate that trading in commodities has a more favorable chance for success. Neptune and Mars in the fourth is not a position favorable for the growth or storage of crops and foodstuffs and we may see some destruction of these articles which will put their prices up.

Since we are to have an irregular trading market we will have more buying and selling dates than usual. The following dates show minor trends as indicated:

Down—through the 4th—Low for the month.

Up —through the 11th.

Down—through the 15th.

Up —through the 21st—High for the month.

Down—through the 26th.

Up —through the 31st.

For those who have a paper loss in any of the various markets, there are several courses open. They may hold their original position in the hope that the market will come back before it goes to the point where they are forced to accept their loss. Or they may try to reduce the original cost by trading; that is, to sell (if they are long) on a selling date and to buy back in on a buying date. The negative profit then acquired will reduce the original cost price. Or they may sell out and buy some other stock or market which has more chance of going up. It may be that the security or market in which they hold a position is not sympathetic to their own horoscope.

With Jupiter in Scorpio, the group of stocks which have the most bullish prospects are the chemicals, oils and foods. With Jupiter in the fifth house of the Solar Ingress Chart, we may expect companies ruled by this house to have a profitable month . . . namely—amusement, movie, show, toys, games and all pleasurable enterprises.

The following stocks have bullish aspects: Allied Chemical and Dye, American Can, Chrysler Corn, Freeport Texas, National Distillers, American Commercial Alcohol, Schenley Distillers, R. H. Macy, Canadian Industries, Union Carbon and Carbide and Douglas Aircraft.

The commodity markets will in general follow the dates given and should afford greater profit making trades than the stock market and bond markets. May, 1935, options will be more favorable to buyers than were December, 1934, options. On December 18th the final (1934 season) government crop report will be issued. This will be about as expected by the trade. The government cotton ginnings report on the 20th may, however, show a larger figure than expected.

FORECAST FOR DECEMBER, 1934

Translated by

PRITAM SINGH GILL, B.A.

Pres.—Hindu Science Institute of America

I. Mirror of the Earth:

(1) As the Hindu month of Poh begins on Friday, December 14th, with the Reoti Nichhittar ascendant, we should expect the prices of foodstuffs and wearing apparel to be higher. Wheat, barley, corn, lentils, etc., will maintain a higher price level. Milk, rice, salt, sugar, honey, cheese, butter will tend to be dearer till the 29th, but after that there will be some steadying influence all around. Beasts of burden, cattle and livestock will remain in greater demand throughout the month. Silver, copper, gold, platinum and precious stones will be dearer. Cotton, cotton fabrics, twine and rayon will go up considerably, but not in a sudden spurt. Commercial oils, used in heavy machinery will stay on the upper price level and there is going to be a great deal of activity in the steel market, pushing the price up. Tobacco, Forage, etc., will be higher in prices, Cosmetics, perfumes and other articles of luxury will be in greater demand thus raising the general price level.

(2) The people in general will suffer greatly from colds, coughs, nervousness, fever and pneumonia. As predicted before we will have a severe winter this year, then increasing to the inconvenience and suffering of the poorer class of people. Hill places especially will have more than the ordinary share of snowfall. There will be more deaths than births. Wild animals and birds will perish in great numbers. The general public will have a great deal of tension and serious uprisings and clashes of interest will take place quite frequently.

II. Mirror of the Sky:

(1) There will be plenty of clouds and storms, winds during this month accompanied by some rain and snow. It will be cloudy on the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd; strong and cold winds on the 8th and 9th; cloudy and gray skies on the 11th and 12th. Some rain on the 15th and 16th; chilly winds on the 19th and 20th; cloudy on the 21st and 22nd; snow on the 24th and 25th; cloudy on the 27th, 29th and 30th.

(2) If there is lightning and thunder on December 1st then we should expect much rain during the summer of 1935. If the Sun remains hidden in the clouds on December 6th then forage, alfalfa, etc., will become dearer. If there is a south wind all day December 8th then the people will suffer a great deal from sickness. If clouds appear on the North-Eastern horizon on December 14th then there will be a lack of rain during the entire coming year. If it rains on December 15th then the prices of grain will tend to be cheaper. If there is lightning and thunder on the night of December 26th then there will not be any rain during the month of July and August. If it rains or snows at noon on December 30th then we should expect a great deal of rain during the summer of 1935. If on the night of December 30th there is a westerly wind then the crops will be destroyed.

A CURIOUS COINCIDENCE

Reprinted from the Boston Globe issue of October 1st, 1934.

WATERTOWN, Oct. 16—At the Perkins Institution for the Blind here, it became known today, pursuing courses of study, are two young men who were born the same day in the same State, who have the same first name and lost their sight in the same kind of explosion. They never met until they came to Watertown a few weeks ago, and were assigned to the same room in a Perkins dormitory.

Donald Donaldson, one of the youths, attended the State School for the Blind in his home State of Washington, and then the University of Washington, where he was graduated in 1923. Two years ago he recovered the full sight of one eye.

Donald Morgan, the other young man, comes from Vashon Island, Wash. Like Donaldson, he lost his sight in the explosion of a dynamite cap. Morgan, who is totally blind, nevertheless attended Cornell, where he received his BA degree and last summer studied at Harvard Summer School.

Both are taking a course at Perkins, given by the institution in conjunction with the Harvard Graduate School of Education, intended to fit them for work among the blind.

We communicated with Mr. Donaldson and received the following very interesting letter relative to this case.

Dear Sir:

This morning's mail brought a letter from you in which you requested the complete birthdate of Mr. Donald Morgan and myself in order to facilitate the work of your research department. We are only too glad to give you this information if it will be of service to your organization.

Mr. Morgan and I were born on Wednesday, June 7, 1911—he, in the State of Illinois, and I in the State of Minnesota.

In addition to having the same birthdate, we have found the following likenesses about ourselves:

- (1) We have the same first names.
- (2) Were both blinded in the State of Washington while playing with dynamite—Mr. Morgan at the age of seventeen, and I at the age of seven; however, the sight in my left eye was completely restored in August of 1932.
- (3) Our parents live in Seattle, Washington.
- (4) We both attended the University of Washington last year without knowing each other.
- (5) We each maintained a high scholastic average throughout our undergraduate work. Mr. Morgan received his B. A. degree from Cornell University with Phi Beta Kappa honors, and I received my B. A. in Ed. degree from the University of Washington and was given a Perkins scholarship, enabling me to take the Harvard course for the blind.

(6) We each entered college with the idea of studying law, but later changed our course to education.

(7) We are pursuing the same courses of study at Perkins Institution in conjunction with the Graduate School of Education, Harvard University.

(8) We expect to devote our lives to the cause of the blind.

(9) We were assigned to the same room by the officials of this institution before we had met each other.

(10) Our interests and ideals coincide closely. Your request for our mothers' birthdates caused us to discover that these dates are also only a week apart. Mr. Morgan's mother was born February 4, 1880, my mother was born February 11, 1889.

Mr. Morgan's accident occurred July 4, 1928, on Vashon Island, Washington.

Mine—early in May (do not remember exact date), 1919, in Spokane, Washington.

It is our hope that the above information will be of service to you, and that you will inform us specifically as to the use you make of it. Thanks for the kind wish of future success and happiness.

Yours very truly,

Donald Donaldson.

The above is presented to our readers for discussion and comment. The only comment we shall make is to call attention to the position of Mars on June 7, 1911—3/20 Aries. Reference to page 16 of the October 1934 issue of American Astrology will bring to light a fact of parallel significance in the case of Russ Colombo who was killed by a bullet wound over the left eye—Russ Colombo was born January 14, 1908, and had Mars posited at 2/20 Aries and we have on record another case of injury (not serious) to the eyes by explosives (also a Fourth of July incident) wherein Mars is found at 4/08 Aries in their birth chart.

Carter lists 3° Cancer-Capricorn as among those specifically relating to circumstances affecting the eyes, but we can find no direct reference to the 3rd degree of Aries. However, the above is sufficient to indicate this area as worthy of careful study for the purpose of discovering just what may be the extent of its possible correlation with the eyes. So far the exact point of contact would appear to be 3° Aries and the orb would seem to be quite narrow.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

A couple of protests—must I conclude that my remarks were un-Christian or un-scientific—or both.

Paul G. Clancy:—

The November issue of American Astrology reached me tonight.

Upon reading your comment upon "Christian Science" makes me "ashamed" that I could subscribe to a periodical—edited by a man of such bigoted ideas.

I sincerely hope you will have the same reaction from many subscribers.

To say I am disgusted is mildly expressing my views.

L. B.

P. S. Your comment is not only a reflection upon Christian Science Faith but on "God." What is your Faith if you have any?

Paul G. Clancy:—

I do not know how much longer my subscriptions runs, but CANCEL IT AT ONCE, I want no more of your foul fakery and blasphemy—God rules the planets, Astrology is part of God's law. But you understand neither God nor Astrology. You and your magazine are servants of evil.

F. R.

Answer: As a matter of fact nothing was farther from my mind than to cast any reflection on Christian Science. On the contrary, I myself am a firm believer of the principles of Christian Science, but I also believe that many fail to get satisfactory results for the reason that they neglect to back up their words with appropriate actions. After all, we know and agree that "Faith without works is dead." We must also "live the life"—"who lives the life shall know the doctrine."

Furthermore, I find no contradiction between my conception of Christian Science and Astrology. The Horoscope, I consider a pattern of Law and who applies the principle of Faith—within the Law cannot fail. If you would care to read the item "Astral Influence" on page 17 of the November issue, you will find this idea explained quite thoroughly.

The following from a Reader is a beautiful thought, beautifully expressed and is worthy of study by all those who seek to pierce the mystic veil of material consciousness.

FINITE MINDS

We are a Million lights,
Which through the dark night peer;
But when the dawn of Truth shall break,
We all in one shall disappear.

Now here is a protest by one who is admittedly not a "Scientist" who nevertheless presents a case for them in a manner that must win the respect of any fair-minded person.

Dear Mr. Clancy:—

Altho I am not a Christian Scientist—I take exception to the back cover page of this month's issue of American Astrology and I am quite interested in your magazine.

1. I don't believe Scientists of any creed believe that mere Words create the miracle of healing either mentally or physically—without faith.

2. It isn't necessary to desperately affirm anything—if you affirm it—this is a statement of fact itself—also requiring the belief or faith that it is so NOW, if you believe GOD is GOOD, and if you have that unselfish love you speak of for humanity—you surely don't deny this being good (Good).

3. You are not tolerant of the other fellow's belief. (I object.—Ed.)

As stated above these are only my own personal opinions—I am not affiliated with any Church—if I was a Scientist—I would be in wrong with them by even arguing about the matter. Think you would do the world lots more good though by printing the best and not the worst side of life. Read the attached, please—with no offense meant on the part of the writer.

CHRISTIANS

Even when days are dark and clouds of depression hang low—the Agents of God (or goodness) in this soul-sick world are (those with hearts full of unselfish love for humanity) AFFIRMING the goodness of God and PROVING the GOODNESS of God by helping the "other fellow" with his load—then everything is alright and for such a person every day is (a) God's (good) day.

Respectfully,

A Reader.

I stand corrected.—Ed.

Christmas

May we call your attention to our special Christmas offer of 6 (14 months) subscriptions to AMERICAN ASTROLOGY for $10.00? This does not include a premium.

Closing date for this offer December 23rd, 1934.

COLOR PSYCHOLOGY

Dear Mr. Clancy:—

In reply to V. B. J.'s criticism on "Psychology of Color in Relation to Astrology—Libra Blue," please accept this explanation: In the treatment of these articles on Color, I have first considered color from a scientific standpoint, which is an artist's view. Having studied Art and Architecture and having been a practicing decorator for ten years, I certainly have to know scientific value of color, which is the true value of color.

My object is to do something useful rather than sensational—build up around the primary color of the month and decorate a room as it should be done for the native. There are certain colors for certain Architectural period rooms, so I select an Architectural period which will be suitable for the colors built up around the primary color of the month, with its complement, and shaded or tinted to the proper value according to good taste and harmony.

Taking the Psychology of Blue, I first go into the scientific value of blue, take it from the Color Spectrum, which reduces the selection of color to a science. The complement of any color on the chart is the color directly opposed. Thus the complement of Blue is orange.

All Librans do not have the same color combinations, as they have different planetary influences. In order to really get an idea as to color combinations preferred by a native and, also, to be able to select harmonizing shades, it is advisable to go thoroughly into the chart. Naturally, if a person has several planets prominent it is necessary to blend various colors into certain shades in order to arrive at the real preference of the native.

I do not take any special native—just the color influences of the month. For Libra, I took a primary blue shaded with grey; and since complementary colors should be of the same intensity and value, blue's complement orange, has to be shaded with grey, making coral—so we have the color combination of blue and coral, which can be made into several combinations—to resemble the colors one might see in a diamond or opal, but shaded to the proper intensity of color for interior Decorative purposes. I did not contradict myself, as coral is a shaded value of orange, and very much related.

After having gone into the true value of color (scientific), I go into the Psychology of Color. Different writers have many ideas as to Psychology of Color, which has been taken from mythology and symbolism.

Colors have played a conspicuous part in mythology. Doubtless the attributes which they are supposed to possess were very real, even though it were originally realized that the colors were used symbolically, they have acquired by continued association and common consent of degree of signification similar to words. It is impossible to separate the treatment of color in mythology and symbolism, because the use of color in mythology is largely symbolical. Much of the color has been inserted by artists, poets and writers, centuries after myths had evolved to a more or less stable state.

Myths are stories of anonymous origin prevalent chiefly among primitive peoples and accepted by them with credulity. Natural phenomena and various events are accounted for by attributing them to the super-natural. When the origin, purpose and life of myths are considered, a view is obtained of the importance of the symbolic use of color which has survived during the long process passed through by a myth during its evolution.

The power of association of color with a certain event for years is exemplified in many cases at the present time and, therefore, the symbolical use of color in mythology should not be rejected. Many of the characteristics which are bestowed upon color at the present time owe their origin to the imaginings of early people who lived at a time when knowledge was scarce.

GEOCENTRIC ASTROLOGY

Question: I was much impressed by Mr. Paul Council's article in this month's "American Astrology" and would be glad if you could tell me where I can get more information regarding his geocentric charts, which you refer to in "Many Things"—I have Bailey's Prenatal Epoch and I cannot make it work to my satisfaction or any theories mentioned in Alan Leo's books and

I quite agree with you that so far as the Birth hour is concerned, one guess is as good as another. I suppose one day someone will re-discover some fool-proof method—maybe—nevertheless it is important to find the corect M. C. and Ascendant. It is a very difficult matter when, as is often the case, the day only is known. One can, of course, get a great deal of information from a Solar Chart, but it is very unsatisfactory.

OPEN LETTER FROM PAUL COUNCIL TO READERS OF AMERICAN ASTROLOGY

My Dear Mr. Clancy:—

I have examined with much care the "open letter" of Mr. L. Edward Johndro in your November issue, and am asking your space for this reply in the service of the common good.

First let me ask if any of your readers know anything of this alleged endorsement of my star map by him, seemingly the theme-song of his complaint against as the first six paragraphs of his letter suggest, that they place their information immediately and directly before him at his published address.

In taking up Mr. Johndro's criticism of Table B of my star map, I must point out the presumable typographical error in the "R. A. rate of change in precession is given as 57".5 for 1930." This should have been 47".5.

It is most difficult to deal with his several criticisms of this table due to this peculiar statement in the middle of paragraph eight:

"Moreover, and this is more vital, as the Geocentric and heliocentric zodiacs are respectively defined by the actual positions of the Sun and Earth of the date they are independent of all epochs of an "orbital drift" of the solar system as a whole." The import of this statement justifies the question:

When did the Zodiac become such a flimsy thing that moves with the Sun and Earth, and who says so? I know that astronomy denies the necessity for any zodiacal measure, and astronomy has good reason to do so. It could not tolerate the inconsistency of treating with "Signs" far removed from their constellations, so it abandoned the fiction. Astrology is not so honest with itself, for its mathematicians continue to create artificial zodiacs on this same moving Equinox.

If that is what Johndro means with his "defining" of zodiacs, there is no use in stringing out the argument; for my star map is nothing less than a direct and uncompromising attack on the whole fallacious astrological structure that has been built upon the doctrine of a MOVING EQUINOX. It is nothing but a fictitious scheme, supported only by sophistical reason. Reconciliation of my viewpoint with his, therefore, is a possibility so remote that it is folly now to argue it.

As far as the rates of change in the table are concerned, my authority for the Ecliptic change of 50" is no less an astronomical figure than the late Simon Newcomb, important enough to be listed in very small dictionaries. According to Newcomb there is also a secular change of ".00024 which I deemed myself privileged to omit from the table in the interest of simplicity and convenience, although it is reflected in the position of the Equinox shown in the map. My rates of precession on the Equator are simply this Ecliptic rate converted into the Right

Ascension of the degrees of Aries corresponding thereto. This was the only possible procedure that would tie my map into current astrological ephemerides, tables, and statistics, without which the map could have no service value in converting the "Signs" of the Sidereal or Moving Zodiac into the Fixed Zodiac of the Constellations bearing their names. And that was the function for which the map was primarily compiled.

The functional value of that conception governed my entire research also of course which have been embodied in the map. The most casual review of that work will easily warrant the conclusion that I was thinking of nothing else—least of all would it appear that I was thinking of the ramifications of Mr. Johndro's approach to an entirely different objective. As you have rightly pointed out in your letter following his, time is not of the essence of scientific discovery. However, the deductions that governed my researches, while only accidentally competitive with his, are entirely confirmed by the inductive treatment of events as will be later shown; hence the logic of my case is as unassailable as the facts of it.

Now for case material in validation of my "baseline," I will draw on Mr. Johndro's books rather than invite the charge of "hand-picking" cases to support my star map. Obviously the limits of space forbid any detailed comparison of the application of the two contending Greenwich baselines. But those who have Mr. Johndro's books will find it good exercise to fill in the missing detail, and those who do not have them would find the intricate and lengthy argument but tiresome at best.

It is true that I borrowed Mr. Johndro's directional formula for which I rather fulsomely thanked him on the face of the map, in which I considered that I had discharged my obligation to a fellow hunter. In this I hope that all authors who follow me will feel free to use anything that I have published with no greater sense of obligation to me than I felt for him.

But I quickly found that his formula was open to question due to the fact, that every one born on the same longitude would, by his method, have the Sun in the same angle of the chart, regardless of the time of year of such birth. In that connection see charts of Edward VII, George V, and William II, pages 123, 127 and 133 of THE EARTH IN THE HEAVENS. And most every one born in Eastern Longitudes of the United States would have 12th house Suns. Still believing that angles and houses mean something in charts, this convinced me that the principle was wrong. Thereupon I issued Supplement to Map of March 8th, 1934, based on the principle published in the DIAL at that time. This Supplement was sent to all direct buyers of the Map, and also placed in the hands of my dealers for distribution to their buyers. However, I was not entirely satisfied with that principle of directing, which though plausible was not catalytic, so continued my researches into all available theories of directional astrology. This resulted in my discovery of the method of directing on the Solar Interval to the Meridian. This met all catalytic tests on chain and group charts and, on May 14th, I sent these findings to all direct buyers of the DIAL, advising dealers also of the correction. On October 3rd, all direct buyers of the Map were sent final instructions in the correct method of using the Map in astrological work. I most certainly hope that future writers on this subject who follow me will have no such trouble with their borrowings of my works.

The major difficulty in dealing with mundane events astrologically is that the exact nature of the event stubbornly resists classification in all but a small percentage of cases. We must certainly know what happened before we can pretend to account for it in a chart or else, we must have enough confidence in our charts to rely on them to tell us what happened. This is most strikingly demonstrated in Mr. Johndro's first example in THE EARTH AND THE

HEAVENS, from which all examples except the last of this letter have been taken.

Example I, the Great Chicago Fire.

It is one thing to deal with earthquakes, tidal waves, tornadoes, and other Acts of God, or with outbreaks of mob violence, are, and other phenomena of mass psychology, but it is quite another matter to account astrologically for a cow's kicking over a lamp and causing the destruction of the better part of a large city. The question that concerns me in this example is, "how could Astrology have served to foretell this fire?" Unless a theory of accountability, such as this example attempts, is available for foretelling the recurrence of such an event, of what use is it? Is it possible that any astrologer, studying Chicago's year 1871 would have gone behind the ingress of 1871 to that of 1870 for his predictive pattern, or would he have gone even as far back as the ingress of that Year? And then would he have been able to predict the holocaust on the subsequently supporting evidences brought forward by Mr. Johndro? I doubt exceedingly if all these diverse and widely intervalled elements would have been brought into a predictive pattern unless astrological practice then was vastly different than it is today.

This example is further complicated by the facts that we do not know exactly what happened, hence any effort to fathom its astrological genesis is based on the shifting sands of sense-perception, nor do we know the TIME it happened because of that uncertainty complicated further by conflicting historical records of its starting date. "Curry's History of Chicago" starts it on the 7th, Nelson's Encyclopedia and Webster's Chronological Section, the 8th, and the World Almanac, the 9th. The New York Public Library informs me that Curry is the final word in dating the fire as starting "Saturday night, Oct. 7, 1871." We see that we are dealing with doubtful factors all around, for when questioning whether we are dealing with the conception, birth, or death of something, we are also questioning whether the beginning or end of the fire is the proper astrological date.

But to avoid further confusion in the study, I will use Johndro's date, i. e., October 8th.

To invoke the predictive values of astrology in this case, it seems necessary to project it as a 4th house event (realty values) of the nature of Mars (destroyed by fire). On the probability that an astrologer of that time would have done the same, I have charted the Solar Eclipse of June 18, 1871, on the Precessional Angles of the DIAL for Chicago, which are, MC Aquarius 7, Ascendant Gemini 1. This Eclipse occurred in 26:54 of Gemini. Directing the precessional chart on the arc of the interval to the Meridian, we have the Siderial Time of 14h 58m 40s, and giving the MC as Scorpio 17, Ascendant Capricorn 22. Mars squares the precessional Ascendant with Mercury therein.

Bringing this up to the Lunation of September 14th, in Virgo 21.12 by the same directional method, we have Siderial Time 2h 19m 28s; MC Taurus 7, Ascendant Leo 17. Mars has moved to Scorpio 21 and the 4th house, opposition MC of the Eclipse chart and square the Ascendant of this one.

Setting the chart for the day of the event, i. e., the 8th, with Siderial Time 5h 15, 36s, we have MC Gemini 20, Ascendant 21.18 Virgo.

The MC is moving to conjunction with the Eclipse point and the Nodal Axis. Ascendant is exactly on the previous Lunation, with conjunct Mercury and Venus, just below it, all square Nodes and the Eclipse degree. The Moon is just coming out of conjunction with Jupiter and Uranus, from which it squared Neptune, and is moving to trine Mars still in the 4th. With Mars are also the South Node Elimination with all its implications) and Saturn, the latter probably the salvaging agent of what was left of the town. I would say that this nervous expansive and explosive Moon was the agent that set of Mars, conjecturally through some contact in the Milker's astro-system which communicated itself to the cow (a common enough phenomenon between man and beast). The magnitude of the damage (18,000 houses of value of 190 million dollars) from so trivial a cause must be attributable to a populace, distracted, hysterical, and leaderless by reason of the protracted chain of affiliations to the phenomenal angles of the place. Only the most witless conduct could account for its spread.

I believe that it is entirely possible to have forecasted the event from these charts if sufficient study was devoted to them. Certainly they offer for study an authentic chain of celestial periodicity, well meriting the confidence of serious students of mundane astrology, in that they are entirely catalytic.

Regrettably it is impossible to deal with further examples in any detail, but all in this book are subject to the same critical analysis.

In example V, The San Francisco Fire and Earthquake, Mr. Johndro must needs report to the "middle 10th house" to get his coupling of 7-1/2 Capricorn for the eight aspects listed on page 82, thus obviously forcing his demonstration, DIAL longitude of San Francisco (122:25 W 37:48 N) and the coupling appears immediately in its Ascendant of Aries 7:11, with Capricorn 4 on the MC. This example is possibly the most obvious and unmistakable testimony to the accuracy of my baseline. In many ways this is an event paralleling the Chicago fire. In many ways this is an event paralleling the Chicago fire. Chart of events shows the South Node is again in the 4th, Moon and Saturn hard by in the 5th, with Mars and Venus squaring the Nodes, 10th and 4th angles from the 7th. Again we see the Elimination of Reality of Values by fire.

The cases of the Titanic and the Two Astors offer also interesting and convincing comparisons. The Tokyo Earthquake has already been compared in my article, "The Calcutta Earthquake." (October American Astrology.)

In connection with Mr. Johndro's severe criticism of my arbitrary choice of a location for the India quake in that article, would like to say that I have subsequently been informed by the New York Times' Information Service that Cawnpore was reported as the heaviest sufferer. This point is 80:14 East longitude, which was the Meridian of my first chart of that event. Therefore, I forfeited some of my advantage in subsequently estimating the point as 82:22 East. Had my chart been set for Cawnpore it would have been nothing short of perfect.

And finally, in the concluding chapter of THE STARS, Mr. Johndro makes a study of the outbreak of the Great War and the Solar Eclipse THEREAFTER of August 21st, in Leo 27/35. His conclusions are based on the coupling of this degree with his Leo Precessional Ascendants for Sarajevo and other European participants in the war. DIAL longitude of Sarajevo (18 East) and Taurus 27 will be found on its Meridian. I submit to the Astrologically minded the question of whether the assassination of Ferdinand and the eventualities that followed are of the nature of aspects to the Ascendant, then let us abandon reference to this FUTURE Eclipse and revert to that of February 25th in 6 Pisces. This Eclipse occurred within a half degree of my Precessional Descendant (The War Making Angle) for Berlin. I am sure that the study of Pisces and this 7th Angle for the interval from this Eclipse to the outbreak of the War will yield the periodicity of celestial events that started it at that point.

While I haven't the least doubt of my baseline making a better demonstration of every one of Mr. Johndro's examples, I can still say that in my estimation his two books cited are most valuable contributions to astrology, and that they would gain in popularity were he less pedantic and if his attitude that "I am Sir Oracle; When my mouth opens let no dog bark" was substantially modified.

My own works are offered to the World with keen relish for the rough and tumble of their defense, but I hope that the next challenger will bring forward a better case.

Thanking you for the courtesy of your space,
Sincerely yours,

Paul Council.

Note: We think we owe it to our Readers to advise that so far as American Astrology is concerned this closes the argument re-Geocentric Astrology. We may add that in a recent communication Mr. Johndro has called our attention to a misleading typographical error that appears in his letter on page 21 of the November issue. Namely 57".5 should read 47".5.

HAUPTMANN

Dear Mr. Clancy:—

All the Astrologers are working on Bruno Richard Hauptmann's Chart and I simply offer my own conclusions in case they may be interesting to you and your readers.

The date given on Hauptmann's driver's license, printed in the papers, was November 26, 1899. Presuming this is correct I am using twenty-one degrees of Aquarius on the Ascendant, as Saturn being stationary at that point during the time of Hauptmann's trial, it seems a definite indication of what the correct Ascending degree might be. This brings 14 Sagittarius on the Mid-Heaven which Neptune is squaring now. The Sun, Mars, Uranus and Jupiter fall in the Ninth House, indicating Hauptmann's removal to a distant country from the one of his birth. It puts Mercury, Venus and Saturn directly in the Mid-Heaven opposed by Neptune in the Fourth House. Pluto stands exactly over the Cusp of the Fourth House... may we interpret this as a drastically unfortunate end to his career?

Not going into much detail on all the bad aspects in his Chart, the one good one is his Moon in the Seventh House, sextiling Jupiter, which should account for the help his wife has given him. Even this is weak so that it is simply one ray of light through a vast expanse of darkness.

In February and March Jupiter will transit its own place in his Chart, so if the trial extends into these months it is sure to help him, but with Neptune gradually approaching the square of Pluto and Mars later in 1935 and remaining squared to the M. C. throughout I cannot see that there is much to hope for. Saturn squares his Sun and Uranus for many months, adding to the list of malefic aspects.

I offer this because, out of many Charts which I have seen for Hauptmann, I feel that this is the most nearly correct. Please add more data to it if you wish.

Faternally,

Myra Kingsley.

125 E. 57th St., New York City.

Question: Universal Service says November 30, 1899, for Hauptmann—what is his true date?

Answer: November 26, 1899, is the correct date for Hauptmann. This has been carefully checked and may be accepted as authentic.

INSTINCTS

Question: Have been deeply interested in all of your articles in American Astrology, though I am not an actual student of this study.

There are many ways in which you could help the person who hasn't the time or opportunity to study Astrology and which I am sure would be equally interesting to students.

One in particular which I think of and which has interested me for years is the natural law governing each sign. Perhaps I don't make myself clear. I have been searching for something of this sort for years, having studied metaphysics and having discovered that such a law exists. You are the first person whom I have heard mention them in a way that they can be applied for practical use. For instance, if I understand correctly, the law governing the sign Taurus is COOPERATION. Gemini, UNSELFISH SERVICE. Virgo the same. And I think you said Pisces should be nice to their marriage partner, or approximately that.

Would you kindly give the law governing the rest of the signs in your column "Many Things." I, for one, would greatly appreciate same and am sure it would be of untold benefit to making and appreciated by a great many.

E. G. P.

Answer: You would probably find helpful, our correlation of the twelve signs with the twelve instincts.

Some years ago Professor MacDougal in his "Social Psychology" published a list of twelve instincts which we found fitted neatly into the Zodiacal pattern as follows:

Aries—Self Assertion
Taurus—Acquisitiveness
Gemini—Flight
Cancer—Parental
Leo—Reproduction
Virgo—Nutrition
Libra—Self-Abasement
Scorpio—Pugnacity
Sagittarius—Curiosity
Capricorn—Construction
Aquarius—Gregariousness
Pisces—Repulsion

Now if we will combine these with the nine emotional urges corresponding to each of the Planets (exclusive of Pluto), we find that we have a PERIODIC TABLE, of the elements of Consciousness corresponding to the 12 series and 9 groups of Mendeleeff's Periodic Table of the Elements of Matter.

Prof. James defines an instinct as "A tendency to act" and an emotion as "A tendency to feel." Combine an instinctive urge to action with an emotional urge to re-action and the result is an elementary state of consciousness that is stepped up through varying degrees of intensity (or awareness) from the dream stage of lowest forms of life, corresponding to the lightest known element Helium, up to the super-consciousness of the most highly evolved human corresponding to the heaviest elements of the Radio-active group.

These elementary states of Consciousness are then compounded to form all the complex mental states (complexes) incident to the manifestations of conscious life.

KARMA

Dear Sir:—

I was much surprised when I saw your remark about Karma in the November issue of your magazine, when you say that it is a mental contortionist's way out of a cruel world. It is true that it is easier to pay a debt that we think is a just one, than one we feel is an unjust one. But in either case it does not pay the debt.

I have accepted the belief, that Karma and not astrology accounts for the various stations we have in life. That astrology is merely carrying out the laws of Karma. We know that one is born with wealth and health (both mental physical) while another one may lack one or more of these worldly blessings. If this is accounted for by inheritance, then why is it that the same parents have several children perfect in health and then have a child that is most imperfect physically, or mentally. Or do you account for this variation by the fact that the "Stars" were stacked against the unfortunate one? If either be true then there is no justice and they are fooling us when they say that "God is good."

Your statement, "It leaves absolutely nothing to be desired," without the belief in Karma, I would agree with you if you would add to that statement, but self gain. Then the Golden Rule, "Do unto others as you would have others to do unto you," would be for "suckers only!" but to me with the belief in Karma it leaves EVERYTHING (GOOD) to be desired. For then God's laws are as just, are more just than man's laws. Then should I steal, I could return and repay the person in some way instead of being sent to eternal hell to burn. And for the same offense in man's law I would not be put in a place where the only hardship would be that I could not go where I pleased for about a year. Should I flunk in a class in school, the school would allow me to take that subject over again and would give me extra help in it. Knowing this I still try to pass the first time, and it has not changed my incentive in the least.

Then with Re-incarnation God is as just as man and gives us a chance to make up in any department that we may flunk in, and should we make a fair showing in all departments when we come again we would have clear sailing, thus accounting for the various stations in life and the statement that "God is Good," and "As you sow so shall you reap," and many others.

Without Re-incarnation I am lost, but they say that "What is one man's meat is another's poison" then I should not insist that you partake of my meat. And remember that you have as much right to your view as I have to mine.

H. M. Fox.

Answer: The whole problem of "Karma" would seem to hinge on our interpretation of "Individualism" and our evaluation of the Individual in the Universal scheme. Before we can really solve this problem satisfactorily we must clearly define (identify) that intangible, elusive something which we call the "soul."

In our grander moments there is something that responds sublimely to these words.

Lord of a thousand Worlds—I AM
 I've lived since time began
 And night and day in cyclic sway
 Pass by while their works I scan
 Yea, time shall cease e'er I find release
 For I AM THE SOUL OF MAN.

There are many things I want to believe—that I feel are true—but which "Reason" denies—and if we abrogate "Reason" then can we possibly arrive at anything definite? Must we not wait?—knowing perhaps—intuitively—but reserving final judgment until the facts are available. That statement by Luther Burbank—that great soul who had the courage to face the unknown honestly admitting that he did not know—has always had a strong appeal.

"The path to honor is paved with thorns, but every step you take upon the path of 'Truth' you set your foot upon your own heart."

Professor James in his essay "What is the meaning of Life" places this problem of survival and the hereafter beyond the pale of material consciousness with this classic statement "Every unit of Conscious life brings with it its own edition of the Universe." Obviously from that point of view, there can be no limit to individual evolution and no measure of the individual to be found in a material Universe. The Physical form, or the social—or even the intellectual—status of the personal "me"—my personal actions—lose their personal significance and cannot be accepted as a criterion for Spiritual evaluation, but if we accept this as true then the necessity for individually paying Karmic debts through successive incarnations has also vanished. My apparent obligations to others are in reality obligations to my 'Higher (universal) Self' which is identical with the "Higher Self" of every other person in the World. The multiverse has become A Universe—the "Many" merge into "One." The evolution of the individual is identified with the evolution of the Race. The experience of One is the experience of all—eventually—and when the collective (Race) consciousness has evolved to the point of Individualization all the Individuals who have lived and died in the entire history of the Race will live again in the fully awakened Race consciousness. A pattern of consciousness and memory woven of the innumerable vari-colored threads of Destiny, that have comprised the life experiences of every individual unit of conscious life that has existed throughout that entire life wave.

This spiritual identification of all the diverse forms of life that comprise the world eliminates all sense of personal obligation in a Karmic or personal sense. Individual debts are in fact racial debts and Vicarious Atonement becomes not only a fact in nature, but a natural law—"I am my brother's keeper."

What then of this physical world that seems to be so solid, substantial—and at times terrifying—our purely personal problems that seem to be so important? Was "Omar" right?

We are no more than a moving row
 Of magic shadow shapes that come and go
 'Round this Sun-illuminated lantern held
 In midnight by the Master of the Show.

MARINE DISASTERS

Reprint from "The Evening Sun,"
 Baltimore, Md., Oct. 6, 1934

[By the Associated Press]

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The number of disasters at sea has been swelled since September 8, when the liner Morro Castle burned off the New Jersey coast with a loss of 132 lives.

One ship, the British freighter Millpool, is feared lost off the Newfoundland coast, at least thirteen ocean-going vessels have been damaged by flames, and several ships have been in collision.

Disasters Recorded

Since the Morro Castle tragedy the following incidents have been written into the maritime fire record:

Sept. 11—Fire discovered in the refrigerating plant of the Santa Barbara, American motor ship in port at New York; extinguished after slight damage.

Sept. 12—Fire found in hold of the British steamer Bradburn, Galveston for Kobe. The ship, considerably damaged, was berthed at Balboa, her cotton cargo ruined.

Sept. 13—Fire started in the coal bunkers of the German steamer Cassell; extinguished with slight damage and ship proceeded to the Azores. The Norwegian motor ship I. K. Ward caught fire at Gothenburg, Sweden; damage not serious.

Sept. 16—Yacht Zowie destroyed by fire at Cambridge, Md.

Sept. 19—Fire found in the hold of the American motor liner Santa Rita when 200 miles west of Balboa; extinguished with slight damage.

Engine room fire caused slight damage in the Japanese steamer Taiyo Maru, Shanghai, for San Francisco.

U. S. Steamer Destroyed

Sept. 20—American steamer Gerard Klein destroyed by fire at Manchester, Pa. British steamer Anglo-Australian damaged slightly by fire at Wallsend.

Sept. 24—Norwegian steamer Grenmar caught fire off Holland coast; damage unknown.

Sept. 26—Norwegian motor ship Estella arrived in London with fire in hold; damage undetermined.

Sept. 28—British steamer Aberhill damaged by fire at Oran, Algeria.

Oct. 1—Fire found in hold of German liner Koenigstein; extinguished after slight damage.

Listed as probably a total loss was the schooner yacht Silver Spray after a collision September 21 with the British motor ship Rio Casma near St. John, N. B.

Crash Off Cape Cod

Another collision which caused some damage was that of the steamer Pan Royal and the British liner Laconia September 24 off Cape Cod.

Several ships have been crippled in storms since the night of the Morro Castle fire, when high seas raged. Except for the missing freighter Millpool, the storm-damaged ships later were reported out of danger.

Reprint from "The New York Astrologer" issue form May, June July, 1933. "The New York Astrologer" is published by Miss Elizabeth Aldrich, 160 W. 73rd St., New York.

For some time, the writer as a technical research worker, had noticed cyclical variation in the inventive and creative powers of his co-workers. Because of its rapid fluctuation, it was accredited to a lunar influence. Therefore he began statistical efforts to connect this variation with some Astrological circumstances of the Moon.

This was a task of no little magnitude. For months, a daily tabulation was made of the number and quality of the ideas submitted by the writer's associates for general consideration.

When a quantity of information had been collected it was rated and analyzed. Attempts were made to correlate this information with the Moon's affairs, i. e., Sign, aspects, etc. No particular success was had until a curious use of the Moon's aspect to the Nodes was tried. Then several interesting things unfolded themselves.

Astrologically, the Moon's Nodes are always in opposition. Therefore the Moon in its Zodiacal passage forms two minimum (North Node and South Node) and two maximum (the opposing squares) aspects.

When the Moon was on, or in the immediate vicinity of, the North Node, the ideas were theoretical, visionary, and most suitable for exploratory use. As the Moon's position advanced towards the square aspect a marked diminution in the quality of ideas took place. There was a striking lack of originality. This condition was very marked on occasions when the exact aspect was reached during working hours.

As the Moon moved on to the South Node, the ideas became very practical and suitable for commercial use. At the actual conjunction (if it occurred during working hours—the most ingenious and financially successful schemes were developed. With the passage of the Moon towards the succeeding square aspect the practicality diminished until a condition arrived that was apparently equivalent in lack of originality to that of the former square aspect.

With the Moon's return towards the North Node the theoretical qualities came forward until the original influence was reasserted at conjunction.

The Signs passed through by the Nodes and Moon seemed to have very little influence if any. This seemed contrary to expectations, but it was substantiated by facts. From this investigation three things seem reasonably apparent:

First, that the presence of the Moon near its South Node favors the conception of ideas with a visionary outlook.

Second, that the presence of the Moon near its South Node favors the conception of ideas with a practical and commercial outlook.

Third, that the position of the Moon near the square aspect to the Nodes greatly diminishes creative originality.

These facts mean that about two weeks of each lunar month are available for inventive thought of value. The writer has applied these principles to himself with success. He synchronizes his practical and theoretical requirements with the Moon's aspects to the Nodes. Thus he has about a week for each type of work. The balance of the time he applies towards the routine necessary for the consolidation and demonstration of the ideas so gained.

If these principles are generally applicable, they should be very useful to those who live by the product of their minds.

MORRO CASTLE

Question: Does anyone have date for launching of the "Morro Castle" and can anyone give the hour of her last sailing from Havana?

Answer: The Morro Castle was a record breaker in more ways than one, a fast boat with a rather stormy career.

Launched—March 5, 1930.

Maiden Voyage—August 23, 1930.

Lost in terrific storm—September 18, 1933.

Caught in a crossfire of Cuban gunboats—November, 1933.

Sailed from Havana—Between 6 and 7 p. m. September 5, 1934.

Destroyed by fire—near Asbury Park, N. J.—September 8, 1934.—Fire first discovered by a steward at 12:15 a. m., beyond control at 2:30 a. m., alarm given at 3:15 a. m.

Capt. Robert R. Willmott born—February 15, 1878.

The following analysis of a chart erected for 2:30 a. m., September 8th, for the location of the disaster contributed by Henry J. Raab, 2720 Silverhill Road, Baltimore, Md., furnishes some interesting comparisons that are worthy of consideration by other students.

NEPTUNE AND THE SEA

To Neptune is conceded rulership over the sea and marine transportation. Accordingly, any unusual activity of Neptune by aspect from other planets should result in unusual marine events, fortunate or unfortunate. Unfortunately, fortunate marine events seldom reach the status of "news," while the disasters are reported in glaring headlines.

Neptune is now very active, in that its position is being transmitted by Mercury, Venus, Mars, and the Sun and Moon, the Lunation of September 9th, having taken place just three degrees from Neptune. Even the most casual reader of the daily press has no doubt been struck with the great number of marine accidents, most of which have been by fire.

The first of these happenings was the disaster of the Morro Castle, off the Jersey coast on the morning of September 8th. A Chart erected for that location at 2:30 a. m., which is generally thought to be the hour at which the fire began, contains some interesting indications.

1. Mars in conjunction with the Dragon's Tail on the ascendant, this conjunction being squared by Uranus from the Mid-heaven.
2. The Moon approaching the lunation, with Neptune between the Lights and with Venus conjunct the Moon, making a powerful configuration of these four planets Stellium United.

The complex configuration in this chart seems to center around Venus, and it must be remembered that the voyage of the Morro Castle was primarily a pleasure cruise. The presence of Mars conjunct the Dragon's Tail on the Ascendant indicates but one thing—violence with unfortunate consequences, and with the configuration in Leo, what else is needed for a violent fire? Since the Moon is approaching the lunation and is under the subtle orb of Neptune, the Dragon's Tail is particularly indicative. With the Lights and Neptune in Virgo, "the sign of the masses," this was certainly no good indication for the mass of passengers on the ill-fated ship.

The effects of Neptune and Uranus may account for the general confusion that reigned, and which prevented proper and efficient escape from the burning ship, and also for the helplessness of the proper authorities on the vessel because of secret plots and activities and subtle lawlessness.

The Master of the Morro Castle dies, of heart failure, it is reported, a few hours before the fire. Mars conjunct the Dragon's Tail in Leo, the sign ruling the heart, may account for this. An examination of the Master's chart, if available, may make startling revelations. (February 15, 1878.) Nevertheless, the influence of Neptune in this position and under present conditions cannot be doubted in the face of the continued reports of marine fires and other mishaps that continue to appear in the daily press.

PERSONAL APPEARANCE

Dear Sir:—

I have been reading American Astrology for the past year and have found many items of importance in your magazine. While I do at times find things with which I do not agree, this is true of most any magazine, I do like your spirit and manner of conducting the work.

I received the November issue today at the newsstand and find on reading over your question department, which I generally read first that one of the readers wants to know if there is any book out telling about the features of the face and personal appearance of people according to the sign rising at birth. Now I think I can add some good news to this answer. On reading October and December issues of the Astrological Bulletin 1934, on page 212 in the advertising section on the last half of the page I found the following book advertised by the Sign Publishing Co., at 3627 Finney Ave., St. Louis, Mo. "Astrology Simplified and Illustrated" by E. C. Matthews, Price $2.00 postpaid. Also free circular on request. It gives pictures of the features according to the sign rising at birth. The size of the book is 8½ x 11 inches, easy to read and understand. The text matter consists of 20,000 words in large type with forty charts, large portraits and other original illustrations.

I do not have a copy now but have ordered one, but the circular they sent me is very good and they give prompt service.

I also want to say that I was glad to see that your question department has enlarged and is the longest I have found since I started reading your magazine. May it continue to grow.

I will try to send in suggestions and data for the students as their questions bring them out for what aids one also aids the major cause for better and more scientific astrology.

PLANETARY PERIODS

Question: I have enjoyed reading some of the recent issues of your magazine—but have failed to find there what I have been seeking. I would like to make a further study of astrology—but I lack the necessary time for that.

I wish to learn of the latest previous days when astral conditions were similar to these dates, for example: October 15, 1934; November 1, 1934; November 15, 1934; to aid me in some problems I am trying to solve?

D. M. C.

Answer: An answer to this question involves a consideration of the specific planet or planetary configurations involved.

There are, of course, no two dates quite similar in a general sense that is to say with respect to all the planets or the complete planetary pattern, but when we take into consideration individual planets we find that these move according to well defined cycles.

For instance, Venus returns to the same degree of the Zodiac on the same day of the year every 8 years with an added increment of  $1^{\circ} 32'$ . This information may be most valuable in determining the basic tendency of Solar conjunctions in individual cases. Thus, the forthcoming solar conjunction of Venus due on November 18th, 1934, is a recurrence of a Sun-Venus conjunction that occurred November 18th, 1926, and previous in November, 1918, 1910, 1902, etc. Such conjunctions if occurring within a degree or two of a natal planet may have great significance for the individual involved. Similarly Sun-Mercury or Sun-Mars conjunctions repeat in the same degree of the Zodiac every 79 years.

The complete planetary cycles are as follows:

Neptune 164 years 280 days means annual motion 2.10.54.

Uranus 84 years gives an advance in longitude of  $40'$  only.

Saturn 59 years given an advance of 1 degree  $53'$ .

Jupiter has a period of exactly 83 years.

Mars 79 years given an advance of 1 degree  $34'$ .

Venus 8 years gives a mean advance of 1 degree  $32'$  but inconstant.

Mercury 79 years gives a mean advance of 1 degree  $27'$  but irregular.

There are several other major cycles also worthy of consideration, for instance, the opposition of Jupiter to Uranus, October 10, 1934, was a repetition of a similar opposition (as to month and sign) that occurred on October 22, 1852. However, the Jupiter-Uranus opposition repeats from various signs every 14 years. Saturn-Neptune conjunctions (and oppositions) repeat every 37 years. Saturn-Jupiter conjunctions repeat every 20 years, etc.

PREDICTION

Walter Winchell says:

Noting the convention of the astrologers in Miami—one of us wonders why no one has mentioned the beating they took on the Lindbergh baby's death. When it was born many astrologers got themselves in print by featuring horoscopes of the child's future. What he'd do when he grew up, etc. Not one of them foresaw any danger for the baby.

When he was kidnapped, one prominent predictor told in the newsreel how the baby would be found and soon! And it would be alive and well.

Their alibis would make diverting copy, now, I think. Let any of them consider themselves double-dared.

Well—and that's that—what about it Astrologers?

Personally, we have no alibi to offer we never published anything about the child. We did not feel under any obligation to give the Lindbergh baby a free reading when it was born and we were not asked to assist in the solution of the kidnapping so why bother?—we didn't.

Astrologers who climb frantically upon the band-wagon of publicity in a case of this kind always present a picture that is at best ridiculous and rather pathetic.

They must know that they will not be taken seriously, that their findings (if any) will be laughed out of court, and anyway what can they possibly accomplish in a case of this kind unless they be permitted to operate with official status at least on an equal footing with the police.

So far as reading the chart of this child when it was born is concerned. Just exactly what would have happened to the Astrologer who in June, 1930, might have had the temerity to publicly predict that Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr. would be kidnapped and murdered before he attained his second birthdate? And what good would it have done had the prediction been made? Obviously those who may have had the ability to foresee this were also wise enough to remain silent.

However, the contest announced on page 63 of this issue would seem to promise something definite—Astrologers do your stuff—but PLEASE soft-pedal the intuition. Let us have conclusions based upon rules that once known can be tested and applied to similar events. This is the scientific approach and the only one that has any practical value.

Incidentally, we might call your attention to our remarks re: Hauptmann on page 17 of the November issue, wherein we hinted that since a certain significant area was unoccupied in Hauptmann's Chart he would probably NOT be convicted of murder—we might have added for the very good reason that he did NOT kill the child.

It is a curious fact in connection with Hauptmann's Chart that in addition to the case of "Paranoia" mentioned in our last issue as having the same birthdate as Hauptmann we also understand that Al Singer—convicted in the U. S. Bank crash was also born November 26th, 1899.

By the way, what about this Astrological Convention?—or—maybe we shouldn't have mentioned it again—perhaps it's a secret—'s no use, folks, you can't keep anything from Winchell.

RASPUTIN

Question: Do you know where I can get the birthdate of Rasputin?

Answer: This is a date that seems to be somewhat controversial. References to the files of the New York Public Library reveals little that is conclusive. There have been literally hundreds of books written about this man—and they all give a different birthdate it seems. The Library has dates ranging all the way from 1864 to 1873 and as the consensus of opinion seemed to favor the 1864 date this is the year usually given out by the Library when Rasputin's birthdate is asked for.

We even contacted a relative of Rasputin now residing in New York, but while we got from him much regarding the family history we could get nothing definite on the one point that interested us.

However, out of the welter of contradictory testimony we finally sifted a date that seems to be from several points of view most authentic.

A Book by "Charles Omessa" translated from the French by Frances Keyser and published in the Strand Magazine, January 1918, advises us that "Gregory Effimovitch—called Rasputin" was born in Siberia July 7, 1872. It is assumed that this date is according to the Old Style calendar, because that is the type of calendar in use in Russia at the time this book was written, in which case the N. S. date would be July 19, 1872.

It must be admitted that the Planetary pattern for this date certainly does accurately reveal the character of the man as evidenced by his career.

RECTIFICATION

Question: My investigation of your theory of the Mother's progressed Moon being on the Midheaven or Nadir of the Child's chart leads me to conclude that this theory has no foundation in fact. I have the most reliable data by which to check that theory in the birthtimes of myself and brothers as well as other data and I can draw no other conclusion than that the theory is false.

In my own investigation of this matter I have found that the birthdate of the Father is the one to take but the progressed Moon has nothing to do with the matter. In order for families to co-exist the affiliation between members thereof must necessarily be radical and cannot be attributed to a transient factor such as the progressed Moon for how would the Moon in its continuum of motion bring about those things which transpire in family life? One day I would be pleased to give you an idea of my findings.

F. A. K.

Answer: Again we must repeat—and how often is this going to be necessary—again we say—please pause right here and give this a chance to register—we will let you in on a secret—The mother's birthdate system of rectification does NOT (necessarily) give the birth hour—when the two ascendants do happen to agree we accept it as purely an accident and of no consequence. The birth hours (even when known) must be ignored. For further references on this point turn to page 19 of the September, 1934, issue and page 57 of the November, 1933, issue of American Astrology.

REINCARNATION

"I think your 'argument' against 'Reincarnation' was the bunk."

Answer: Quite so—quite so. As a matter of fact, I didn't think it was so good myself—will try to do better next time. You see, there are so many things I don't believe that I know are true.

ROSES

—or should we say—"Orchids" to Rose Campbell Starr.

The following letter is just one of many similar communications that we have received from readers during the past few months. So I guess we'll have to do something about it—but what can you do with "A Wild Irish Rose"?—she'll write when she feels like writing.

In the meantime perhaps the following plea will have some effect, let us hope so.

Dear Sir:—

Permit me to ask what has become of OUR BELOVED Rose Campbell Starr?

I've been so disappointed for several months. With each issue I look for her articles first. To me they are the dearest things in the American. Of course, I like them all, but hers always were so beautiful. I pray she isn't ill and will be with us again soon. Thanking you in advance for a reply.

Respectfully,

Mrs. D. R. I.

—and now Miss Starr has a few words to say
—looks as though we're making some headway.

"May I take this opportunity to thank my many friends among the readers of American Astrology who have sent me such fine letters of appreciation during the past few months? I should like to answer each one personally.

No, I have not been ill—just taking a sort of vacation from astrological writings. Have been assembling the poems written during my "earlier days" for publication in book form, and otherwise very busy "going to and fro in the earth and walking up and down in it." Expect to prepare something for American Astrology shortly. Many thanks again for your kind wishes.

Rose Campbell Starr.

SOLAR HOROSCOPES

The following comments from a reader may be helpful to those who are still in doubt regarding Forecasts based upon the Sun sign alone.

Dear Sir:—

A perusal of the "Many Things" column of "American Astrology" over the last twelve months shows clearly enough that many readers seem to be in doubt as to whether to use the Daily forecasts applicable to their Sun Sign or those appropriate to the Ascending Sign where this is known with certainty. This being so a practical illustration may be acceptable.

In the Spring of 1933 Miss V. G. E., born October 15th, 1901, Lat. 50' 43N Long. 1' 53W. Time 8:30 a. m. consulted me, as an Astrologer, re business and marriage. Calculation of her Progressed Secondary Directions following up a checking up of the Chart from a list of previous events of importance showed that her Progressed Ascendant was applying to a conjunction of Venus, Ruler of her 7th House and the Progressed Jupiter, Ruler of her 5th House, was approaching a sextile of her Radical Ascendant. This being so, and there being other Symbolic Directions of a like nature, I ventured to suggest that she should soon hear the "Bells." The engagement was announced shortly after and the ceremony conducted on September 8th, 1934.

The chart of the interested gentleman is well known to me and shows Virgo 17 Rising, the Sun in Aquarius 14, his progressed Mars, her Ruling Planet, being trine the radical Sun and Mid-heaven for 1933 and 1934. His Jupiter, ruler of the 7th, was also coming to a sextile of the birth-time Moon. The contracting parties both have the Part of Fortune on the same degree.

On the day of the wedding, which was one of several days selected as Astrologically suitable, there was a New Moon conjunct his Ascendant, and in sextile to her Ascendant and Mercury.

On that day also the transiting Saturn was in her 5th Solar House. Venus in her Solar 10th, with Jupiter in her Solar 1st, blending the opposition. Astrologers who have learned of Paul G. Clancy not to sit dumb should a birth time be missing, will be able to read much into the symbolism of this configuration without going further. If you will turn to the Daily Guide portion of American Astrology Vol. II, No. 7, and read for both, the related forecasts for September 8th, taking Libra-Scorpio for the lady and Aquarius-Virgo for the gentleman, you will be able to see at once how appropriately each forecast tunes in with the event.

Space is valuable so I only quote those applying to the gentleman here. Page 58. Aquarius Daily Guide. Sept. 8th. "An important development in the department of business association. This marks a final decision of a safe crossing. An event which closes the door on a past condition and opens a new avenue of progress." Page 48, Virgo Daily Guide gives for September 8th "Personal enterprises much favored. Push your affairs. A new, ambitious adventure commenced today should be successful."

No student of Astrology is possessed of even the bare elements of equipment without an Ephemeris for the year of birth, the following year also if progressed dates require it, and also one for the current year, in addition to these a correctly calculated Nativity is a treasure of never ending use and value. Thus armed you can soon learn to detect whether the forecasts attune to the department of your life entered in the Sun's place, or whether they are related to the more material activities of the Ascendant. A little comparative study on these lines will soon show you how excellently Paul G. Clancy does his work. The wise do not interest themselves in Astrology for the purpose of knowing in advance what sort of a day is coming, but so that they may learn of the Law. Knowledge of the Law does much to make men stronger and, incidentally, very often makes life easier as well.

SWEEPS WINNERS

We have secured the Birth data on 30 winners in the recent Irish Sweepstakes (October 27 and 29) and we intend to publish an analysis of these dates in an early issue of AMERICAN ASTROLOGY. Perhaps if we persist in this we shall find the common denominator of "Luck"—You can't convince the fellow who has just won $150,000.00 on an investment of $2.50 that he isn't "lucky"—call it by any name you choose.

WEATHER

The following news items are not only interesting, but instructive and valuable to students as furnishing a basis for further research.

Wallace Takes Chance on Weather Scientist

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is going to experiment again in an effort to help the farmer and let the jeers fall where they may. He has placed on the Weather Bureau payroll, he confessed, a 26-year-old fellow-Iowan who believes that the moon and the stars hold the secrets of forecasting the weather months in advance.

Larry Page, the optimistic scientist, got his degree in physics at Drake University, where he began in 1931 to check scientifically old racial superstitions about the phases of the moon and the planets on farm conditions.

"I give him one chance in ten," said Wallace, "but it's worth a try."

Note: It is a fact that many persons in official positions, believe in Astrology and are secretly guided thereby, but it would be futile to ask them for confirmation—they wouldn't admit it—not for all the tea in China.

However, some time ago I received a letter from a man at one time connected with the Army Intelligence Service in which I was informed that during the Russo-Japanese war (1904-05) every battle was planned by the Japanese according to Astrology and resulted in a Japanese victory. This same letter contained other information of similar import and equally surprising, but of a confidential nature and not for publication. However, it may be said that even in this enlightened age students of Astrology are still in very good company.

Speaking of "Winter" (and prophecy) which of these prophets will click—the meteorologist or the squirrels.—Those squirrels have had a lot of experience—if that means anything.

From a New York daily paper, issue of October 16th, 1934.

Coldest Winter in Sixty Years Predicted Here

A few more days of Indian Summer are ahead—but then prepare to dig in. This year's Winter promises New York a low in temperatures that will shatter even the sixty-year record of 14.3 below zero last Feb. 9, according to weather men.

Basing his prediction on six major observations, H. Merrill Wills, first assistant meteorologist at the Weather Bureau, yesterday predicted the coldest Winter New York has experienced in years.

Premature cold already experienced here, unusual barometric activity on the weather map, high-pressure areas heading here directly from Canada, and mild temperatures now reported in Montana are among the observations upon which Wills bases his forecast.

Also he pointed out that the law of averages points to a bitter Winter, six mild Winters having preceded the unusual cold of last year.

Now—from the "Boston Post," issue of October 31st.

BEEES READY FOR A MILD WINTER

Squirrels, Too, Expect Little Cold Weather

RANGELEY, Me., Oct. 31 (AP)—Take it from the bees and the squirrels, it's going to be a mild winter.

Weather sages hereabouts note the bees are building their nests close to the ground, reputedly an indication the snow fall will be comparatively light. And in common with the squirrels they're gathering only a small store of food in expectation the duration of cold weather will be short.

Astrologically speaking we find two major configurations that might be accepted as a foundation upon which to base a weather forecast that may hit somewhere near the middle.

As stated on page 17 of the October issue of American Astrology, we have found reasons for correlating weather conditions with the Planetary Nodes—Lunations (or Eclipses) conjuncting South Nodes of a planet tends to release the forces of the Planet involved in an extreme or destructive manner.

On December 6th, 1934, we find a lunation conjunction the South Node of Uranus and on February 3, 1934, a lunation conjuncts the South Node of Neptune. Both of these should be very significant of the weather likely to be encountered during the coming winter.

There is still much to be done in regard to accurately classifying the various planets in regard to weather, but we may safely accept the interpretations of the Brotherhood of Light to date as given in the Manuscripts re: "Weather Forecasting."

Course XV—7 lessons at 25c each lesson.

Therein we find Uranus classified as follows—generally extreme weather conditions with sudden and radical changes.

TEMPERATURE—Generally cold, but with sudden and extreme changes.

AIR MOVEMENTS—Windy, sudden storms, often of extreme and destructive violence, blizzards.

MOISTURE—Dry, but may produce hail storms, otherwise dry, powdery (blustery) snowstorms.

NEPTUNE—Produces freak weather.

TEMPERATURE—Generally cool.

AIR MOVEMENT—Below average, by itself inclines to stillness but may contribute to the destructive violence of a storm.

MOISTURE—Rains—or heavy (flaky) snowstorms. Misty, foggy—poor visibility. May produce floods.

For December, 1934

An HOUR GUIDE for every day, by which it is possible to determine the BEST HOUR of any given Day, for commencing or consummating any specific undertaking.

By acting at the RIGHT TIME, we reduce the chances of error to a minimum. It must be understood that each influence becomes effective several hours in advance of the HOUR given, but decreases in power very rapidly after passing that hour. The extent of this interval varies widely for the various Planets involved. The Hours given may be accepted as a reliable guide if you will time your actions and decisions to be made as closely as possible to the Hour given. If it is not possible to act exactly at the Hour given then a time should be chosen which is Earlier rather than LATER.

MANY THINGS

If we accept the above as probably reliable then we have a fairly complete picture of the weather conditions, likely to prevail during the next six or seven months.

December—Extremely cold, stormy, blizzards of unusual intensity.

January—Relatively mild—in fact by comparison a warm month though snowfall may be quite heavy. The proverbial January thaw may be expected and there may be rain on the warmer days. On the whole a sloppy sort of month.

February—Heavy snowfall. The snow plows will probably be kept busy and God help the suburbanites.

March—A month of floods.

This is, of course, purely a general forecast and no attempt has been made to localize these effects. It is probable that Geocentric Astrology might be of much assistance in this problem of localization.

ARIES

The Month of December for those

Born March 21st to April 19th

November 29 to December 6

During this month, the Sun is trine your natal Sun, in the ninth house of your Solar horoscope; and therefore in general this is a good time of the year for you; you may now push your affairs with courage and confidence, particularly any matter that deals with finance and partnership, and money through other people. Those in authority will be favorable to your interests; legal matters, if they come up, are likely to go in your favor. During this first week, however, there is a rather deceptive influence around you in matters of your professional or business position; your credit is under attack, and you will have to exercise care and caution in dealing with the world in general. This is no time to use your great aggressiveness, but rather to lie back and let the other fellow make the first move, being on the watch for it. Keep your own counsel; make plans in private, and hold your tongue; you get some good advice in secret which you should take without mentioning it to anyone.

December 6 to December 13

This week of the New Moon is an excellent time to start new ventures that may be calculated to pan out well in the long run. A relative, an older person probably, proves helpful; correspondence is encouraging and favorable to your interests; you may this week get some good proposition through a letter that will mean a good deal to you. Watch emotional matters carefully; this is no time to indulge in romance and far flung schemes whether of a personal or a business nature. Keep your feet solidly on the ground, and you will not get into trouble; but if you depart on some alluring and impractical tangent, you are likely to find yourself out on the limb with your escape cut off. Stick to the practical, the things that can be demonstrated and proved, and let the hazy dreams alone.

December 13 to December 20

Mars has now entered the sign Libra, in your Solar seventh house, and he stays there for a matter of about six months, and is likely to stir up ructions; therefore this week, when he makes his first entrance, is the time for you to lay your plans for the duration of his stay, and make every effort to control his explosive influence there, once and for all, at the outset. This influence will tend to make you, and those associated with you, touchy and quarrelsome, and if these traits are allowed to run their course unchecked, you are sure to come a cropper before the race is over. This week, Mars casts his evil eye on you from the department of your professional and business standing, your occupation and credit in the world; you will have to be careful that either through your own high temper at this time, or through the machinations of some unpleasant or difficult business associate, you do not find yourself in a very compromising position. This is the time to work hard and forget personalities, no matter how importunate and unpleasant they get. Keep yourself and your personal feelings out of the picture, and things will go along all right, though they are not likely to be calm under any circumstances.

December 20 to December 29

At the full moon, partnership matters are likely to come swiftly to some sort of development, and you will have to jockey through this week by tact and diplomacy, and by self-discipline in the matters of your personal wants and desires. Don't allow your whims and fancies, or your sensitiveness, now, to give your enemies anything on you, for whatever enemies you have made in the past will now seek to descend on you full force, and you will have to watch out for their designs. You can combat this, difficult thought it may seem, by being unaggressive about all matters, and allowing the other fellow enough rope to hang himself with. You will have to watch this carefully, for this is exactly what the other fellow will be trying to do to you. Do not allow this thing to unnerve you; your best method is in following calm and reason at any cost to your pride and inner wishes.

TAURUS

The Month of December for those
Born April 20th to May 21st

November 29 to December 6

Private matters are both helpful and upsetting this week; if you can keep from allowing emotional matters from getting on your nerves, you stand to profit a good deal through social contacts; but there is an explosive and upsetting influence at work here, and you will have to guard against the more drastic of your romantic tendencies. Don't be deceived by glittering hopes and schemes; some friends will have grand ideas for you, which you will have to judge with caution and with your feet squarely on the ground. Your domestic environment is a little upset, and there are heavy expenses around you providing quite a drain on your financial resources; but you can avoid the worst efforts of this by budgetting your income carefully and staying within your means. Avoid a strong tendency to extravagance, both economic and emotional.

December 6 to December 13

The new Moon falls in your solar eighth house, and puts the emphasis for this month on finances as they are affected by the operations of a partner or associate; also on your frozen assets and money you have but can't get at. You are likely to feel now that the practical side of your life is pretty much muddled up; but make yourself come to grips with this problem; view it solely on the practical, worldly, unimaginative side, and do not let your more romantic nature interfere with your sensible solution of the practical problem you are facing. Do not give in to the dreamy tendency that is now in force; insist on the realistic practical solution to everything. Jupiter now passing through Scorpio in opposition to your Sun-sign will tend to make you overly optimistic in all worldly matters; be sure that this week, this excessive optimism does not lead you on some venture that is really not of any practical value.

December 13 to December 20

Mars has now entered your solar sixth house, for a long stay there in the sign Libra, and this warns you during all this transit, which starts now and lasts for about seven months, that you must not overindulge, either in pleasure, or in work; and that you must guard your health from the results of exuberance, both physical, mental, and emotional. This week, you feel the full force of this influence mentally; you will be active, even over-active, mentally, and you will tend thereby to wear yourself down nervously and physically if you do not exercise a careful check on your exuberance and high spirits. Domestic matters are likely to be irritating, and in this and your dealing with it, as in everything else, you should follow the motto Moderation in all things. Some secret, romantic matter is likely to look pretty good to you, but be sure you are not merely playing into the hands of a very treacherous influence. You are likely this week to get news that may affect your employment or the employment of someone around you; this is a proposition to view with caution; much depends on your handling of this whether it is a good thing or a bad.

December 20 to December 29

During this last week, friends and associates are helpful; those in authority are disposed to help you; a domestic situation, though exciting and a little unnerving, proves suddenly very much in your favor, and you are able to jockey a difficult situation around to your liking; though this is merely a temporary measure; the thing is not settled; but this week you will be able through tact to get it on a very comfortable and satisfactory basis. A secret emotional matter proves disturbing; a letter from far off upsets the even tenor of your way, but this is really not so important as your imagination is making it. Avoid suspicion and jealousy under this influence; no one is trying to hurt you, though it may look that way. Your private judgment is all right for yourself now, but you'll have a hard time making other people agree with you; therefore this is a good time to keep your ideas to yourself.

GEMINI

The Month of December for those
Born May 21st to June 21st

November 29 to December 6

The Sun opposite your natal sun this month makes a period of low vitality, but high mental tension, and the combination of these two can be destructive both to your interests and your health if you let yourself go unchecked. Avoid nervousness, worry, and overwork; also do not indulge in emotional orgies. Especially during this first week, things seem to be popping all around you, but you can't really put your finger on anything; avoid at this time emotional and financial extravagance; plod along the routine course no matter how dull it seems; you can't force things now to any good purpose, and will only get yourself riled up and nervous if you try to. Powerful friends are protecting your interest, and you don't seem to have anything real to worry about; this will not, however, prevent you from worrying, unless you strictly make up your mind not to, and take out your mental energy in a moderate amount of work.

December 6 to December 13

The new Moon opposite your natal sun-sign marks this week as the beginning of a month in which your watchword is co-operation. Seek partnerships, advices, help, and seek also to get the other fellow's viewpoint and act on it for now his slant is more valuable to you than is your own. A woman may give you good advice. There is some treachery around you in financial matters; you can avert the danger implied here by taking care of your financial interests yourself, and not allowing anyone to mix up in them. Again, your interests are being protected for you, and you have very little to worry about, really, provided you do not let erratic judgments run away with your native good sense.

December 13 to December 20

Heavy expenses are indicated this week; you seem required to spend more than you have; it looks as if Christmas is going to be an expensive proposition after all! Mars has now entered Libra, for a six month's stay in your solar fifth house, inaugurating a period of emotional tension that can do a lot of harm to you if you let it. Insist all during this period on figuring everything, whether business or private, on a strictly rational and cold and unemotional basis. You can benefit in a business way through this Martian influence; it can bring you dynamic contacts through social activity that can advance you a good deal, if you do not allow your emotional nature to get the upper hand. This aspect can be all worn out in pleasure and pleasure seeking, if you choose to act along those lines. Watch out this week for an extravagant partner, or some female associate, who will cost you a lot of money if you let her. This is a time when you will be easy prey to the gold-diggers if you let yourself listen to flattery. Be hard-boiled, and let them call you tight; that's better than being a good fellow, and then wondering where the carfare home is coming from. Don't gamble or speculate; be conservative even to the point of stinginess.

December 20 to December 29

Excellent week for seeking publicity, favors, advancement, for those in authority now are very helpful; literary matters prosper; erratic and powerful friends advance you interests. Seek to go about in society; you benefit through public places, and public matters at this time. A good social influence, but don't go to extremes; you can exhaust yourself having a good time as easily as by working, under these influences; but intellectual matters are excellent; write, correspond, converse; out of all these things some large good seems to come. A female friend is troublesome, and expensive, but this is about past now; there are bigger and less emotional things in the wind that come rapidly to fruition now.

GEMINI—Daily Guide

Dec. 1—Commencing 1.39 a. m. ruler Jupiter. Active and busy, but somewhat confusing day. Friends helpful.

Dec. 2—Commencing 2.52 a. m. ruler Jupiter. Emotional matters upsetting; you are all mixed up; don't try to go too fast.

Dec. 3—Commencing 4.07 a. m. ruler Jupiter. This is the last of three disturbing days; later hours better for you, but don't trust too many people under this influence.

Dec. 4—Commencing 5.28 a. m. ruler Saturn. Push your affairs; avoid secrets; friends help you; finances restricted but sound.

Dec. 5—Commencing 6.49 a. m. ruler Uranus. Profit through partnership and associations you gain through diplomacy and long-range planning.

Dec. 6—Commencing 8.08 a. m. ruler Uranus-Saturn. The new moon opposite your solar 1st house inaugurates a month today in which cooperation is your keynote.

Dec. 7—Commencing 9.17 a. m. ruler Saturn. Vitality low, mental and emotional energy high—a dangerous combination. Beware of nervousness, fatigue, and loss through poor judgment.

Dec. 8—Commencing 10.11 a. m. ruler Neptune. Deal with superiors, seek favors; those in authority are for you now.

Dec. 9—Commencing 10.48 a. m. ruler Neptune. Friends prove expensive today if you let them; don't try to entertain too lavishly.

Dec. 10—Commencing 11.15 a. m. ruler Mars. A powerful friend can help you today, and will do so if you approach him.

Dec. 11—Commencing 11.36 a. m. ruler Mars. Emotion will ruin today if you indulge in it; be impersonal and cold in all things.

Dec. 12—Commencing 11.53 a. m. ruler Venus. Business, pleasure, friends, partners, mental and emotional tendencies, get all mixed up today. Better go to a movie.

Dec. 13—Commencing 12.08 a. m. ruler Venus. Secret matters disturb you; look at this with cynicism and calculation; there is no room here for romance.

Dec. 14—Commencing 12.23 p. m. ruler Mercury. Fine active day; take advice, even seek it; a partnership helps you.

Dec. 15—Commencing 12.39 p. m. ruler Mercury. An erratic friend proves very helpful, much to your surprise. Things happen.

Dec. 16—Commencing 12.58 p. m. ruler

Moon. Home conditions upset, but it looks as if you've upset them, and can also right them.

Dec. 17—Commencing 1.11 p. m. ruler Moon. Restrictive financial influence from an associate should be accepted.

Dec. 18—Commencing 1.51 p. m. ruler Sun. Full of energy, vitality, and wild plans for making money. Be more realistic.

Dec. 19—Commencing 2.31 p. m. ruler Sun. Avoid extravagance in the pursuit of pleasure; also emotional irresponsibility.

Dec. 20—Commencing 3.23 p. m. ruler Sun. Lots of people around you, some good, and some bad; select carefully from them. A day of opportunity, but you'll need discrimination to find it.

Dec. 21—Commencing 4.25 p. m. ruler Mercury. Pleasant domestic matters occupy you; good day to entertain in the home.

Dec. 22—Commencing 5.35 p. m. ruler Mercury. An associate is spending your money pretty fast; call a halt today, peacefully if you can.

Dec. 23—Commencing 6.45 p. m. ruler Venus. A private emotional matter will treat you roughly today if you give it the chance.

Dec. 24—Commencing 7.56 p. m. ruler Venus. Quiet but somewhat restrictive social evening; the conservative course wins.

Dec. 25—Commencing 9.06 p. m. ruler Pluto. Friends are helpful; keep your own counsel; don't ask or take or give advice.

Dec. 26—Commencing 10.14 p. m. ruler Pluto. Erratic financial influences make this a day for caution. Things are not as sound as they look if they are presented today.

Dec. 27—Commencing 9 a. m. ruler Pluto. A female friend is helpful, but this is strictly business.

Dec. 28—Commencing 11.23 p. m. Dec. 27. ruler Pluto. Push your affairs; in some strange way, things will help you now.

Dec. 29—Commencing 12.01 a. m. ruler Pluto. Strong, but very impulsive day; you will profit or lose in direct measure to your self-control.

Dec. 30—Commencing 12.33 a. m. ruler Jupiter. A tendency to plunge must be watched, carefully, or you will lose too much.

Dec. 31—Commencing 1.46 a. m. ruler Saturn. Legal matters favor you through powerful friends; seek publicity; publish, write, travel.

CANCER

The Month of December for Those Born June 22nd to July 22nd

November 29 to December 6

During this first week of the month, the focus of your influences is in the seventh and tenth houses of your solar horoscope, throwing the emphasis on matters of partnership and worldly credit and position; and you will have to, at this time, exercise a great deal of caution and tact in your dealing with other people. General conditions favor the pleasant development of your plans, hopes, and wishes, but right now they must be made to move forward with care and caution, rather than with great aggression, for there is a good deal of treachery around you, and some enmity will prove troublesome if you allow it to get a grip. This is a situation that you will have to jockey carefully; it looks as if your interests are being supported privately, and even perhaps secretly, by some powerful friend, who gives you good conservative advice that you ought to follow. You are worried and upset about financial matters, but this seems to be a passing matter merely; in general, your circumstances seem favorable, and improving at that.

December 6 to December 13

The new moon in your solar sixth house throws the emphasis on your worldly position, as it is affected by employment, either your employment, or that of someone around you. This is a dualistic influence; on the one hand, you stand to increase your earning power, and get a greater financial return for your labors, but at the same time, there is some confusing enmity around you, that is particularly annoying because though you sense it, you cannot exactly put your finger on it. This appears to be a matter that you don't really have to worry about; it is being settled for you without any need for you to do anything active about it. Just be sure that unwittingly you do not play into the hands of your detractor. Guard your health; don't be tempted to overdo, either in work or in play, for fatigue now will have a bad effect on your health and nerves, and thus react unfavorably on all your interests.

December 13 to December 20

Personal and domestic matters come to the fore this week; Mars has now entered Libra, in your solar fourth house, for a seven months' stay there which is bound to be disturbing to your private life, kicking up quite a row in your domestic environment. You are nervous, high strung, likely to be extravagant both in emotional and financial matters, and against these dangers you should carefully guard. Your position in the world is secure, but you seem to have private worries and concerns that even your very fortunate material life just now doesn't make you forget. But you should not worry, because worry has a particularly bad effect on your health. Let things take their course now, and you will find that despite your dire forebodings they are going to work themselves out all right. Assume a passive role; pay careful attention to your position and credit, to your work and your health; do the tasks in hand, and you will find that other things fall naturally into place.

December 20 to December 29

Domestic matters continue annoying; whatever this annoyance is, you might as well make up your mind that it's going to be with you for some time, and that you might just as well begin now to make the best of it; this is not something that you can rule out of your life merely by being fretful about it. There seems, in spite of everything, to be a lot of social activity in your home; make sure that this isn't of a type to aggravate the annoyances. This is likely to be a confusing week for you, of conflicting reports, gossip, and emotional upset; don't be lured by the false appearance of excitement and romance, for this is a very treacherous influence, being not only transient, but very inferior in quality in addition to being impermanent. This is a time for you to keep your feet squarely on earth, and listen not at all to the songs the sirens sing.

LEO

The Month of December for those
Born July 23rd to August 23rd

November 29 to December 6

Matters of finance and employment will occupy you this week; there will be some worry in both these departments, but really, there is very little for you to be worried about. You are likely at this time to want to forge ahead more quickly than circumstances warrant, and therefore to become nervous and discontent, out of all proportion to the merits of your situation, which is really very favorable. The Sun is now in your solar fifth house, where he makes very clear the full measure of your private, internal wishes, and you are likely to become, this week, acutely conscious of the fact that you have not achieved the full reward of your ambitions. In spite of this, however, you are in a pretty good position, which is becoming better all the time. You will have to avoid extravagance now, and conserve your money, which seems to be coming in fairly well; but no matter how well it comes in, you'll wind up poor if you spend it all. Don't overwork, this week, or fatigue yourself with worry.

December 6 to December 13

You have some powerful friend who helps you materially this week, and for that matter throughout the remainder of the month which is started by the full Moon on December 6. Don't let romantic and emotional matters take your mind off business, which is now going along pretty much as you like; but you can upset all this by allowing your mind to dwell on impractical and visionary possibilities, which are really impossibilities. Guard your health from overwork and from worry; don't allow your enormous vitality to run away with you, or your naturally romantic nature to sap your business sense and acumen. You stand to gain through a partnership with someone you don't especially like, but who none the less can do a lot for you. This a good place to swallow your pride, and accept what is offered.

December 13 to December 20

Mars has now entered Libra in your solar third house, and he remains there for about seven months, and will do you a lot of good. Intellectual and literary matters will now prosper for you; publicity is aggressive and favorable; a relative proves of great value in advancing your interests. During this week, some secret matter comes up which will eventuate well, though at the moment it seems impractical. Keep this thing in the background of your mind, and go on with your current plans. A woman proves helpful; a partner puts you in the way of making money; social affairs are good for the contacts you make. This is a time to widen your circle among powerful and influential people who will help you. Your personality is strong now, and your magnetism high; make the most of this by meeting people who can do you good; and there are a lot who will be glad to!

December 20 to December 29

Keep your nerves well under control this week and a whole lot of good things will come your way. Looks as if you are being talked about, both favorably and unfavorably; but unless you go out of your way to create a scandal, this publicity is just what you need. You seem to be in the public eye, both through the spoken and the printed word; in any case, whatever walk of life you are in, this is a time when your name and fortune are advanced by good report. You have loyal and powerful friends who are glad to help you, and you should encourage them to do this. Choose your associates carefully; there are all kinds good and bad around you, and this is the time for you to be choosy and snobbish; select those who will do you some good, and not merely those who will think you are a good fellow. Avoid emotional and romantic matters; there is plenty of business to be done, and lots of good things will come from this week, if you use it aggressively, selectively, and constructively. But there is a great temptation to the mere wasting of your forces if you simply follow the path of least resistance. This is where judgment will count for a lot.

VIRGO

The Month of December for those
Born August 24 to September 23

November 20 to December 6

The sun this month passing through your solar fourth house is likely to make December seem a period of things standing still, for the Sun now in relation to your natal sun is at the Nadir of things, about to start up again toward your midheaven. At this time, however, you cannot force the development of things; you have to let them take their own course no matter how static that course may seem to be. You will be, especially during this week, very active personally, feeling full of energy, and it will be best to work this off in mental and intellectual activity. Avoid disputes and quarrels in the home; there are things there not to your liking, but this is likely to be cleared up after the Sun leaves the sign Sagittarius and goes on to your fifth house. This is a week of activity, but not necessarily of progress, except insofar as you use it to build plans for the future, and to put things in order for future progress. But do not be surprised if even your best work meets, apparently, with little reward this week, for this is the end of a cycle, as it were, and the static point in the swinging pendulum before it starts up the other side.

December 6 to December 13

With the full Moon December 6th, you may expect the fruits of your labors to begin to be seen, though only slightly at first; but this is a somewhat more encouraging week than the previous one. Emotional matters, both domestic and otherwise are likely to upset you now; you are likely to feel that your personal interests are not being very well served, and to feel pretty sorry for yourself. This will make nothing but trouble for you if you indulge in it. This is a good time for work, mental and physical, and for all sorts of extraverted, objective activity—anything to take your mind off yourself and your personal problems. You are now feeling the full impact of the confusing, self-indulgent Neptune in your sun-sign, for now it is activated by the square of the Sun and Venus, and the New Moon falls in exact square to that most incalculable planet. You will do well to forget your own personal whims at this time, your personal wishes and desires and quirks of temperament, and put yourself squarely in the other fellows' place, seeing thing from his viewpoint. In a business way, this is a somewhat favorable time, if, as has been said, you don't upset things with temperament.

December 13 to December 20

Now all the warnings of last week must be reviewed, with the addition of a note on the influence of Mars in your solar second house, which he now enters for a stay of seven months. Mars makes both good and bad contacts here, but the net result will be to make you careless of money matters, and this transit of Mars, together with the confusing influence of Neptune, may well leave you broke when he makes his exit on July 30, 1935. This week, you will feel the first impact of this influence, and you should be sure that it does not lead you on some extravagant orgy; this applies especially to financial matters, but may also be taken, especially for this week, as a warning against an orgy of emotional extravagance as well.

December 20 to December 29

Now, at the full Moon, some very interesting development comes up in connection with your professional or business career, which you must estimate carefully, for there are many angles to this proposition, and you will have to select the one that is most practical. One of them, at least, is highly impractical. Some private advice in this matter will give you the clue to the correct answer. Be sure you do not allow emotional considerations to stand in the way of a sound business decision; there is money here (though you'll spend it as fast as you make it if you aren't careful) but you will have to go carefully through a complicated process of reasoning to arrive at the correct decision. Some ambition seems to come to realization here, quite suddenly and surprisingly. But you must hold your sentimental and romantic nature in strict check to derive the maximum benefit from this thing.

VIRGO—Daily Guide

Dec. 1—Commencing 1.39 a. m. ruler Neptune. Seek favors, ask advancement; those in authority favor you and will help.

Dec. 2—Commencing 2.52 a. m. ruler Neptune. Finances and employment are troublesome; spend little, and work carefully; don't push.

Dec. 3—Commencing 4.07 a. m. ruler Mars. A partner is being wasteful of your money; try to control these matters yourself. A legal matter is annoying; bad news from a distance.

Dec. 4—Commencing 5.28 a. m. ruler Mars. A proposition from a strange source puts you in the way of something good through partnership or association; this merits serious consideration.

Dec. 5—Commencing 6.49 a. m. ruler Mars. Erratic, incalculable day; you are likely to be nervous, but don't let this influence your judgment.

Dec. 9—Commencing 10.48 a. m. ruler Mercury. Your friends will wear you out if you don't protect yourself against them. Try to be alone more; crowds bother you.

Dec. 10—Commencing 11.15 a. m. ruler Moon. Extravagant influence today; don't let optimism run away with you. Go easily.

Dec. 11—Commencing 11.36 a. m. ruler Moon. If you danced yesterday you'll pay the piper today in feeling blue if nothing else.

Dec. 12—Commencing 11.53 a. m. ruler Sun. You're likely to go out today and throw caution to the winds in financial matters. Have a good time, but leave a pittance in the bank!

Dec. 13—Commencing 12.08 p. m. ruler Sun. Some older person will heckle you today, and since you're not at your best, you'd better take it without talking back.

Dec. 14—Commencing 12.23 p. m. ruler Mercury. Full of fight and enthusiasm, but be sure this optimism doesn't run you ragged. Domestic matters very pleasant and happy; good night for a party at home.

Dec. 15—Commencing 12.39 p. m. ruler Mercury. Someone steps out and spends your money today. A good day for hard work and the ironing out of trifles.

Dec. 16—Commencing 12.58 p. m. ruler Venus. Write, correspond; you get conflicting advices: take your choice.

Dec. 17—Commencing 1.11 p. m. ruler Venus. A personal matter concerning a female relative is very distressing; don't let this unnerve you. The best cure for worry is work.

Dec. 18—Commencing 1.51 p. m. ruler Pluto. Good proposition here that will make money for you; follow it, but in moderation.

Dec. 19—Commencing 2.31 p. m. ruler Pluto. Your fortunes are being advanced behind the scenes; don't be too aggressive, or you'll upset the apple cart.

Dec. 20—Commencing 3.23 p. m. ruler Pluto. Be stingy today, or you'll spend too much; a woman is expensive.

Dec. 21—Commencing 4.25 p. m. ruler Jupiter. Work in private; public matters very much upset; a good time to keep quiet.

Dec. 22—Commencing 5.35 p. m. ruler Jupiter. You are upset, high-strung, nervous, irritable. Mental work takes up this excess energy very nicely.

Dec. 23—Commencing 6.45 p. m. ruler Saturn. An optimistic friend gives you a good tip in private, but this scheme, though good, is not as glittering as it seems. Still, watch its development.

Dec. 24—Commencing 7.56 p. m. ruler Saturn. Looks as if you've spent a lot on Christmas this year. Exciting conditions at home.

Dec. 25—Commencing 9.06 p. m. ruler Uranus. You make a favorable contact through a social gathering. This may mean much.

Dec. 26—Commencing 10.14 p. m. ruler Uranus. A partner advances both your position and your financial status. A good active and progressive day.

Dec. 27—Commencing 9 a. m. ruler Uranus-Saturn. Friends are helpful; a woman assists. Push your affairs.

Dec. 28—Commencing 11.23 p. m. Dec. 27, ruler Saturn. A letter from far off has conflicting news, good and bad, but the good outweighs the bad.

Dec. 29—Commencing 12.01 a. m. ruler Neptune. Be careful today; finances explosive. Social matters good.

Dec. 30—Commencing 12.33 a. m. ruler Neptune. Don't be persuaded into action that you know is impractical. Today the conservative course is the one to follow.

Dec. 31—Commencing 1.46 a. m. ruler Mars. Push your affairs; seek favors and advancement; those in authority favor you. But avoid quarrels; this is an explosive day.

LIBRA

The Month of December for those
Born September 24 to October 23

November 29 to December 6

The first week of the month winds up the transit of Mars through Virgo, in your solar twelfth house, and therefore brings to an end a period of restriction and irritation because of limited opportunities. This is the last week of that unpleasant condition, and during it you are likely to feel all the full force of whatever has been bothering you since the middle of October, as if it would never come to an end. But this week does mark the end, so you might as well patiently wait for it to get over. At the same time, there is an excellent opportunity for you to put your finances in good shape, through some personal and private contacts, and to lay your plans for an exciting and prosperous, though somewhat extravagant, period. Relatives seem to be helpful to you at this time, and also relatives-in-law; you have some active and powerful connections, and they will be glad to help you if you will give them the opportunity. This is a week less of activity than of planning and consolidating; mental pursuits prosper; correspondence is active, and pleasant, and may be expected to open new fields to you for future development.

December 6 to December 13

During this week of the new moon, Mars enters your natal sign of Libra for a seven-months' stay; this extra long visitation of Mars is due to his retrograde motion, back and forth in your solar first house, till the end of July; and you will begin to feel this influence for the first time now. This transit of Mars is not an unmixed blessing; he makes both good and bad aspects in this sign. The best side of him is manifested by energy, opportunity, and aggression; the worst, by temper, temperament, quarrelsomeness, and extravagance. During this week, you are likely to be pretty touchy and sensitive, viewing things from your own personal, private viewpoint; and if you are not careful, you will indulge your sensitiveness to the point of making you, and everyone around you, unhappy. You should make a serious effort, at this time, to get the other fellow's point of view, and to give him the benefit of the doubt, for under the stimulus of the Martian influence, there is no guarantee that you are in the right no matter how loudly you may proclaim yourself to be. Friends are likely to be upsetting now; watch out that you do not quarrel with them. Also, avoid romantic and emotional matters, for now they are likely to prove upsetting, and your judgment in them erratic and bad. A good way to use up this surplus energy is in mental activities, reading, writing, and studying; or in the pursuit of your normal work into which you can now throw yourself with confidence and courage.

December 13 to December 20

If you work too hard this week you will pay for it in your health, and in nervousness and irritability. Go moderately now in all things: work, diet, the pursuit of pleasure: especially go easily in matters of emotion, for now you are likely to be high strung, and to work yourself up to profitless pitches of emotional excitement that will do nothing but wear you out and exhaust you. Avoid fatigue both physical and mental; strive, to follow the 'even tenor of your way' no matter what the temptation may be to indulge in a more exciting course.

December 20 to December 29

This is a week of opportunity, but you will have to be careful not to be too greatly influenced by personal and romantic considerations. The planet Venus is now in the fourth house of your solar nativity, making a square to Mars, and this provides a domestic upset through excess of emotion and the misdirection of love and affection: this is the true picture of the lover's quarrel, where merely an excess of emotional energy spills over and causes argument and strife. But if you guard against upsetting your life at this point, this should be a week of opportunity, which is likely to come to you through many and unusual social contacts. You may now meet interesting people who will like you and try to help you; and you should seek, by being self-disciplined, to be in the best possible form to meet and accept these opportunities.

SCORPIO

The Month of December for those
Born October 24th to November 22nd

November 29 to December 6

The month of December, with the Sun passing through your solar second house of finances, and the material and benefic planet Jupiter on the first house of your solar nativity, you will find that money matters will be very important to you, and for the most part beneficial. During this first week, however, you are likely to find a confusing financial condition, brought about by other people who seem to have quite an interest in your business affairs; and it seems that at this time their influence will be confusing and bewildering, rather than helpful: they appear to mean well, and to have your interests at heart, but none the less, their advice is something you must view with caution and discernment. It looks very much as if you are your own best adviser at this time, and should follow your own reason rather than counsel from the outside which is likely to come to you whether you seek it or not. A woman is likely to be expensive now; you are tempted to spend a lot in the pursuit of pleasure. Look over last month's note on the influence of Jupiter the Extravagant, and be guided by it especially this week.

December 6 to December 13

The new Moon December 6th falls in your solar second house of finances, and therefore business and money matters will be emphasized during the remainder of the month. This New Moon falls in square to the planet Neptune, so there is bound to be some confusion in your finances, but since it is also conjunct Venus, there should be plenty of money available. There is a good stabilizing influence working on you in your domestic environment; you should now accept the homely advice of those around you, rather than the more romantic and adventurous whisperings of your associates away from home. You may not like what you hear from those intimately connected with you; it may appear a drag on your rampant ambition; but what they tell you is none the less the same and sure way to consolidate your business and material interests at this time. Don't give in to a temptation to be willful and stubborn now, but rather choose the easy and conservative middle course.

December 13 to December 20

Mars now enters the twelfth house of your solar horoscope, in the sign Libra, and stays there seven months. During this time, you will have to be careful that you are not, through headstrong-ness, your own worst enemy. Especially this week, when he is beginning to make himself felt, you must guard against romance and the lure of adventure, which if you yield to it can lead you far afield from your own best interests. Avoid a tendency to discontent, and flightiness. If you keep your feet firmly on the ground at this time, and view everything from a coldly realistic angle, you can get a lot of progress and benefit out of this week, for you have powerful and valuable friends who will help you if you give them a chance. But they are realists all, and will have no patience with any nonsense. What you have to beware of now is parasitic friends who bring out the worst in you. You have excellent practical traits, and now is the time to exercise them even when the other course seems more pleasant.

December 20 to December 27

At the full moon, if you have kept your feet well under you, there will be some real opportunity for advancement, of a very unusual, sudden, and surprising sort. But there are treacherous influences at work, both around you, and in your own nature at this time; you are inclined to be temperamental, and there is nothing that so quickly destroys the opportunity for worldly advancement as temperament. Your energies now have a tendency to dissipate themselves in fruitless, or meaningless, directions; your mind is active, but disinclined to follow a definite constructive course for long enough to make it a reality. Hold down that tendency to personal indulgence of your whims and fancies; there is a lot of good luck here, for you to take, if you will concentrate on the practical aspects of your life, and forget the will-o'-the-wisp that seems so luring, but is really so insubstantial.

SAGITTARIUS

The Month of December for those
Born November 23rd to December 21st

November 29 to December 6

Some dynamic matter of your position and credit comes to a head this week; your authority and position are helped much to your personal satisfaction. The material gain is not yet in sight, but that will come later; in the meantime, be sure that this week you keep your head; there is a good chance that you will act in a manner hurtful to yourself if you are not careful. You are under some emotional tension that may react badly on your career if you aren't careful; you are likely also get bad advice in private that will make too great an impression on you; this is a time to look out for flatterers. Don't sign papers this week, or enter into agreements; pursue a mild and non-committal course and await developments: this applies to business and personal matters alike.

December 6 to December 13

The new Moon in your natal sign dedicates the next four weeks to you, and they are likely to be confusing, especially with regard to your worldly position, credit, and advancement, for this new Moon falls in square to Neptune in your solar tenth house, and will therefore bring out all the most incalculable manifestations of that mysterious planet. Mars, also, enters your solar eleventh house this week, for a seven-months' stay; and it is likely that under the combined rays of Neptune and Mars, you will be surrounded by dynamic and impressive associates and friends, who will give you all sorts of advice, both good and bad. It would seem that there is some one friend, a woman, who has your interests really at heart; you should follow her advices; they will be more to your advantage than the advice of male friends at this time. But keep your emotions out of it; any yielding to emotional considerations, or personal whims, in business matters, is bound to be hurtful; and in general, all romantic matters are suspect at this time. Someone is helping you in secret: a letter or other communication brings good news. This is a good time for you to travel: perhaps you are contemplating a change in business or residence; if so this is a time when the matter may be expected to come to a head.

December 13 to December 20

You are tempted this week to yield to the personal, private, and emotional outlook: domestic matters especially seem to occupy you, and these things will react badly on your career if you allow them to monopolize your mind and your attention. A communication from afar, or concerning a relative, is upsetting because of its indefiniteness: again some woman is your best confidant and advisor. Guard your health from nervous repercussions; don't work or play too hard; you have some good friends, but they are a little strenuous, and you can easily wear yourself out now by simply having too much of a good time. Go easily; conserve that excellent vitality of yours, and especially protect it from the incursions of worry. You really have nothing to worry about, unless you drive yourself too far and too hard.

December 20 to December 29

An associate opposes you this week; this seems to be both a personal and a business matter. You are likely to be hurt, personally by this matter. Something at a distance suddenly requires your attention; you may make an unexpected trip, of which the results will be more pleasant than you imagine. A romantic matter suddenly goes wrong, much to your distress; you will think a friend has betrayed you, but there is a good chance that your judgment in this matter is incorrect. This is a good week to reserve judgment: there is more here than appears at once on the surface. Conflicting advices divide your opinion irritatingly; you will have to choose carefully between the good advisers and the bad—between true and false prophets. You seem to be surrounded by lots of people who insist on giving you advice, when really you are perfectly capable of deciding these problems for yourself: which you should do.

SAGITTARIUS—Daily Guide

Dec. 22—Commencing 5.35 p. m. ruler Neptune. Your position is secure; nevertheless you are worried about money. Maybe this is the Christmas blues. Don't spend too wildly today.

Dec. 23—Commencing 6.45 p. m. ruler Mars. You are too energetic; you're likely to quarrel if you go full tilt today.

Dec. 24—Commencing 7.56 p. m. ruler Mars. You meet with some disappointment through a friend, but don't let this spoil your Christmas.

Dec. 25—Commencing 9.06 p. m. ruler Venus. Christmas night and you should feel at peace with the world. Pleasure from afar.

Dec. 26—Commencing 10.14 p. m. ruler Venus. This should be an active and pleasant day, socially and otherwise. Go ahead.

Dec. 27—Commencing 9 a. m. ruler Venus. Push your affairs; a contact made socially is advantageous.

Dec. 28—Commencing 11.23 p. m. Dec. 27, ruler Venus. A thoroughly negative day; get routine matters attended to.

Dec. 29—Commencing 12.01 a. m. ruler Venus. Plenty of excitement here; don't go on an emotional spree; be calm and sensible.

Dec. 30—Commencing 12.33 a. m. ruler Mercury. A domestic matter is troublesome: you receive good news from afar. Don't write or sign agreements.

Dec. 31—Commencing 1.46 a. m. ruler Moon. A friend at home is troublesome, but this is a fine day for social activities away from home. A good New Year's Eve for you to celebrate.

CAPRICORN

The Month of December for those

Born December 22nd to January 19th

November 29 to December 6

Good influences from your ninth house make this a very progressive week; you will get support from your friends in the achievement of some advancement that you want; an intellectual associate helps you. Financial matters seem to be under some strain, but this is more a matter of seeming than actuality; a good deal of this matter is mainly in your mind; actually, your finances seem in pretty satisfactory shape, but you are concerned about them. Saturn is transiting your second house, and this means not necessarily that you are poor, but that you think you need more money than you have. Right now this seems especially true; but if you cut your pattern to your cloth, you will see that you really have enough. Your position in the world should advance this week, and you should be put in the way of achieving something that you want, through a very good and loyal friend who has some considerable private influence. An irritating domestic matter worries you, but this is something that has been going on for some time, and is about over, so you will do well to forget it.

December 6 to December 13

Private matters will concern you this week, things of a secret and possibly a romantic nature. Be sure these concerns, whether real or imagined (it looks as if some of them were merely pipe dreams!) do not upset your judgment of the realistic world around you. Some important opportunity is about to come your way, of which you will be able to take advantage only if your feet are firmly planted on the ground. The feet of Capricorn usually are planted firmly on the ground; but right now you seem concerned with something a little more imaginative than is your wont. In all this you seem to have a good private adviser in the form of a woman or girl who has your advancement very much at heart, and is really interested in your success. She is a little visionary too, right now, but she is likely to show you the right way if you will work it out with her.

December 13 to December 20

It looks as if a pretty good, and somewhat sudden opportunity comes your way this week, through an associate, and from quite a distance. A communication contains business information that may lead to some additional money for you, through a partnership or joint investment of some sort. This seems to be a private and even a secret matter, as if you were being let in on the ground floor of something pretty good; however, like all such opportunities, it will warrant careful attention. You will be the center of conflicting advices, and no matter how good this proposition is, it will be better to reserve decision until later. This is a week when all does not appear on the surface, by any means at all. There is some good luck, but a great deal of treachery around you, possibly from a relative or someone you trust a great deal. Do not be deceived this week by a glib tongue or by glittering schemes. Allow your suspicion full sway, and you will not go far wrong. However, in all the welter of things around you, there does seem to be one good chance offered, though it may not pan out as spectacularly as it first appears.

December 20 to December 29

A very upsetting influence in your home, environment this week; you, and someone around you too, for that matter, are touchy, sensitive, and quarrelsome, and you will make a lot of trouble out of nothing if you encourage this tempest in a teapot. It is really only a passing, and very trivial, matter, but it can kick up quite a row if you let it. In the meantime, there are important things waiting for you in the world of affairs, if you forget your personal and private life and go out to look for them. You seem able this week in some way to liquidate frozen assets; but there is also an extravagant influence at work; be careful that under it you do not spend more than you have. Some matter of employment comes to realization now, much to your personal gratification; this does not seem to mean a lot of money right away, but it is something you have been looking for, and its materialization is a source of pleasure to you. Avoid quarrels and sharp words, both at home and abroad, for now you are under rather high-strung influences.

Dec. 24—Commencing 7.56 p. m. ruler Venus. Forget your worries and your business and enjoy Christmas eve and Christmas in your home.

Dec. 25—Commencing 9.06 p. m. ruler Mercury. Tonight and tomorrow are excellent times for you to push your affairs in all departments.

Dec. 26—Commencing 10.14 p. m. ruler Mercury. Good social evening; good time to give a party or go to one.

Dec. 27—Commencing 9 a. m. ruler Mercury. A partner is talkative and obstreperous; let him talk today, but don't let him do anything active.

Dec. 28—Commencing 11.23 p. m. Dec. 27 ruler Mercury. Social matters good; sign no papers; enter no agreements.

Dec. 29—Commencing 12.01 a. m. ruler Mercury. Very dynamic influence today; take what comes, but don't force any issues.

AQUARIUS

The Month of December for those
Born January 20th to February 18th

November 29 to December 6

During this week, you seem to be somewhat in the public eye, in whatever sphere of life you are now engaged, for the planet Mercury going through your Solar tenth house and making there the benefit contact of Jupiter, brings you to attention. This is a good time for you to seek publicity; you will profit now by the pleasant things that people say of you. The Sun passing through your solar house of friends gives you support from powerful and influential people, who are interested in you and will advance your position. The square of Saturn, in your Sun sign now, to the planet Mercury, is a warning to you to be quiet now, and allow these forces, and friends, to work for you, for they can do more for you if you do not push yourself at this time. Let things happen to you, and around you; these are matters that will take care of themselves, and with Saturn in your Sun sign, you cannot successfully push matters. With Venus in your house of friends, you may expect pleasant contacts with and help from women, who will be very kindly disposed toward you now. In addition to the practical implications of these positions this should be a very pleasant week socially.

December 6 to December 13

With Mercury entering your house of friends, and Mars entering your ninth house, this week, you may expect your friendships and associations to take on a suddenly dynamic and intellectual aspect. Mars in your ninth, in trine for seven months to your solar ascendant, should be an excellent influence, during which the restrictive influence of Saturn that you have felt for the last couple of years will pass away, and you will find new worlds opening to you, new opportunities, and new aspirations. You will now receive help from friends, especially during the remainder of this month, and after that in moderation for a long time; your fortunes are on the upgrade now, and with the entry of Mars into Libra, you may push your affairs for yourself with more confidence than in the past. Seek publicity; with Jupiter in your tenth house, it cannot fail to benefit you. Mercury in your eleventh now surrounds you with interesting friends and many of them will be very profitable as well as pleasant.

December 13 to December 20

This week there seems to be some trouble over money matters, an extravagant tendency in this department that will give you plenty to worry about if you are not careful. Some of your friends prove both erratic and expensive; it's about time you started weeding them out, and keeping only the good and worth while ones. Some associates seems to be giving you bad financial advice, which you should ignore. Venus is working up to a square of Mars, now, and if you aren't careful you are going to have some kind of secret or intrigue on your hands that will be extremely troublesome. Be careful in all your dealings with people now, and be sure that by poor judgment you do not transform favorable publicity into notoriety. Also avoid excessive expenditures, especially in the pursuit of pleasure.

December 20 to December 29

There seems to be some confusion in your department of romance, friendship, and affection this week, as if some friend were talking about you and making trouble, or at least excitement, for you. There is some matter you wish kept quiet which seems to want to come out in the open, much to your distress. This is all a passing matter merely, but it can be very annoying until it passes; the best thing for you to do is to be as quiet as possible till all this chatter dies down. It isn't even going to hurt you a little, and will be especially powerless to hurt you if you refuse to talk. Here is the place where silence is truly golden. Let the rest of the world chatter. Avoid all matters of emotion, as much as you can, and don't allow yourself to be thrown off balance by little irritations. Keep your own counsel; you will get plenty of unasked for advice, most of which will be worthless. This is a good time merely to be the Lone Wolf and go your own way by yourself, in spite of all the people around you.

PISCES

The Month of December for those
Born February 19th to March 20th

November 29 to December 6

This week and next, bring to a close the disturbing transit of Mars in the seventh house of your solar horoscope, where he has made an unpleasant condition between you and your partners and associates, whether in your business or your personal life. This week you are still under that not too easy influence, and with the quarter of the Moon falling also in Virgo in your seventh house, you may expect that the full impact of this influence will fall in this week. This is also emphasized by the fact that the Sun is now in square to Mars and Neptune in your seventh, and all in all, you may expect that this week will bring to a close some association that you will not be sorry to see go into the discard. Though this is not without unpleasantness, it is nevertheless a good thing, for the Sun and Venus are now in your Solar tenth house, and the break that is imminent is likely to land you in a better position than you were in before. You will have to exercise a good deal of tact and discernment in all matters this week, but it seems that there are better things in store for you, though your tenth house transits which are so good just now. You can't push your affairs very fast now; there are restrictions on you that you cannot force your way through; but if you will quietly accept what comes, you will probably be surprised at the satisfactory results.

December 6 to December 13

The New Moon in your Solar tenth house ushers in a week, and a month, in which you will be amply repaid for the unpleasantness of the transit of Mars now past. This New Moon is in conjunction with the planet Venus, in sextile to Saturn, and widely in trine to Uranus, as well as in square to Neptune in your seventh, and it seems that the break in association is more than paid for, both in personal satisfaction and later in financial return. You may as a result of this lunation find yourself catapulted into a position very much to your liking, with more scope and authority, and quite a good deal of a future. Beware of bad advices; you will arrive at the most satisfactory decision now by merely consulting your own inner wishes, for friends, however well intentioned, are likely to confuse you more than they help you now.

December 13 to December 20

Personal matters replace business concerns this week in your life, though the personal matters have a direct bearing on business and vice versa. You have some influential people around you who are willing, able, and anxious to help you, if you will simply give them the hint of what you want; they find you a little cold and difficult to understand, but are disposed to be friendly toward you when you tell them how to be. This is a good week to let them know what your wishes and desires are, for no one can tell them but you. Be careful this week that you do not in some way give people a false impression of yourself and your intentions; guard your speech and writings carefully, and select your friends with great discrimination.

December 20 to December 29

Some impulsive person, or it may be some impulsive action of your own, is causing disturbance this week; also there is a domestic matter that threatens to absorb your interest, to the detriment of your worldly position. Try to solve both these personal matters as quickly, and as tactfully, as possible; do not indulge in scandal or gossip about others; and try to ignore any false, or unfair, reports about yourself. Some people just love to talk. Whether they know what they're talking about or not: make sure that you give them nothing to say. Avoid publicity, public places; don't tell all you know, and remember that your plans always carry through better when you do not discuss them with anyone. This is a week to stay quietly behind the scenes, and under no circumstances allow yourself to be forced into the limelight.

Dec. 19—Commencing 2.31 p. m. ruler Venus. You can push your affairs by cold logic today, but not by any emotional means.

IMMORTALITY

Life never dies
The forms may come and go
We mortals who aspire
To Heavenly heights.
And Immortality.
Have but one hope and duty
That to live
The NOW—each moment
As tho' it were our last
And o'er the ever-surg-ing Tide of Time
There sometimes shines
A pure white light
The light of love
Then Life meets life
And merges into—
Immortality.
